More Pounds, More Smiles
Gold and Gloom
Cool in Washington
Hung Up, Forever

By Arthur Brisbane

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25—A little currency inflation, as Cyrus H. K. Curtis suggested recently, in one of his newspapers, is sometimes useful.

"Poor England," sliding down from a gold basis, automatically inflates her currency. A pound worth less means more pounds, and more pounds, until inflation goes too far, mean more cheerfulness. London's stock market yesterday was cheerful, British securities rising.

Not so here, where we sit in our five billion dollar pile of yellow gold, clinging to our darling gold standard.

Wall Street, with "short selling" restored, and bears active, saw stocks go sliding down.

Who can explain finance? Merlin could not, if he came back, nor the Witch of Endor, much less any banker.

Britain's pound dropped to three dollars and ninety cents, from a normal gold value of four eighty odd, and London's markets were cheerful.

No amateur should "put his finger between the bark and the tree," as the French have it. No amateur in finance should tell Wall Street what to do. But if the Stock Exchange really wants to discourage short selling, which means conspiracies, and attacks on values, why not make short sellers pay $25, or $50, on every share of stock borrowed for short sales. Or would that be Bolshevism?

Yesterday this beautiful city, Washington, after a broiling summer, enjoyed a cool breeze, and cheerfulness.

Fruit stands sell deliciously ripe peaches and pears, very large, five for five cents. Taxicabs, in some kind of local rate war, take you anywhere in Washington for 20 cents. And everybody is amazingly polite. Nearly everybody is on a payroll, and Uncle Sam keeps his help, although he does not pay as well as he should.

In the hot weather, President Hoover eats his luncheon on the rear balcony of the White House, overlooking the Potomac, and facing the tall, white Washington monument, constant reminder that this is a stable country, in spite of Wall Street's wild war dance.

Even more stable than the Washington monument, and as truly American, are the people, young and old waiting in the executive offices, where reporters gather, to shake the President's hand.

There are placid women from the Middle West, wholesome young girls, that will soon be back in high school; old men, with beards, that want to tell the President they knew General Grant.

The country and its ambitions are real to them. The White House is the center of earthly glory. The President is the greatest man in the world, with 99 per cent to spare. To shake his hand, see him smile benevolently, much delighted to meet you, is for Americans, genuine and unsophisticated, as exciting and eternally memorable as for an Arab to look upon the Kaaba stone at Mecca or for a Buddhist to see Gautama's tooth, solemnly carried on the back of an elephant, in its golden howdah.

Some Americans, gone, but still here, interest you, as you pass their portraits within the White House, that was once their house. Woodrow Wilson, looking very young, handsome, hangs in a golden frame in the main hall.

When you have known him at work, dictating to the world, financing half of it with American money, ordering obedient millions of men and billions of dollars, it seems strange to see him there, hung up, forever, on the right of the door not to move, unless another President shall order it, the quiet colored servants, that once jumped and shivered at his approach, passing him without a look.

We are such stuff as dreams are made on, indeed, and when our little life is rounded with a gilt frame, to which no one pays attention, it is pitiful.

Gen. Grant, framed inside of Woodrow Wilson's door, has withstood time better, and he is inside the room, not out in the hall. He is a rugged person, with big shirt front, gold chain, stubbly beard, who drank hard when he had no important job and fought hard when there was fighting. He looks over to the left at Jefferson, with hair almost white. Their companions in the room are James Madison and John Adams, the latter looking like Mr. Pickwick with fluffy hair standing out on either side of his surprised eyes.

Do they come back at midnight, and talk it over, and perhaps let Woodrow Wilson come

Explosion Shakes Newbury Street

1 HURT, GIRLS FLEE BOILER BLAST

Back Bay Building Is Badly Damaged and Man Is Severely Burned

One man was injured and a score of other persons, including Girl Scouts, were given a fright today when a boiler exploded in the basement of the six-story building at 143 Newbury st., near Dartmouth st., Back Bay.

The Girl Scouts fled to the roof of the buildings from their headquarters on the fifth and sixth floors as the structure rocked from the force of the blast.

The blast blew out three large windows on the first floor, showering the glass on the sidewalk and attracting a large crowd.

JANITOR IS BURNED

Merchandise on the first floor, occupied by Dennison's, was damaged, including expensive glassware and ornamental pieces in the windows.

The injured man was John Shine, the janitor, who was alone in the basement. He was taken to City Hospital and treated for severe burns.

FLOCK TO FIRE ESCAPE

Four occupants of the Kiff-Hastings hairdressing shop on the third floor went to a fire escape. They were Mrs. G. T. Winslow of Dudley st., Brookline, a customer; Miss I. M Hastings, Miss Bessie Ricketson and Miss Ethel Scott. Mrs. George Denning of Manchester-by-the-Sea was in the building on her way to this shop.

On the fourth floor were Miss Bessie D. Murphy, owner of a beauty parlor, and her assistants Miss Anna M. Ecker and Miss Victoria O. Page. They ran to the windows and, assuring themselves that the danger was over, returned to their work.

Among those on the first floor at the time of the blast were Vincent Morrison, Mrs. Janet Johnston, Miss Helen Atwood and Miss Lillian Grant.

Treasurer of Cape Playhouse Drowns

Dennis, Sept. 25 (AP)—Miss Marie Hobson, 35, of New York, assistant treasurer of the Cape Playhouse, was drowned today while canoeing on Scargo Lake.

Mogens Petri, electrician of the Playhouse, with whom she was canoeing, told the police the craft overturned in rough water. He said he carried Miss Hobson part way to shore and then lost her.

25 Held, 13 Hurt in Scottish Dole Riots

Dundee, Scotland, Sept. 25 (INS)—Twenty-five men were in jail here today because of rioting by several thousand unemployed who fought with the police and threw stones through shop windows last night. Thirteen persons were injured.

The demonstration was staged as a protest against reduction of the dole.

Has 29 Wives and Loses His No. 28

Oakland, Cal., Sept. 25—Norman Flood's 28th wife has had her marriage annulled. She was not his last wife, however, for one he married later caused him to be sent to prison for bigamy.

He said he had been married 29 times in 20 years and had more than 400 sweethearts.

Balances and Receipts

Drain Pond in Search of Woman

Norwood, Sept. 25—Vose Pond in East Walpole was drained today by the Walpole fire department in belief that Miss Rose Friary, 61, missing since late Tuesday night, may have drowned.

At the same time Boy Scouts and Norwood citizens, numbering more than 100, were beating the woods around this town and Walpole.

With the volunteer searchers were members of the state police and of Norwood police, as well as many employes of the Bird & Son roofing plant, where Miss Friary worked for 40 years.

According to Miss Mary Friary, a sister of the missing woman, she has not been in good health for some time. The sisters have been living together in Mylod st.

STOCKS MOVE ERRATICALLY

BULLETIN

London, Sept. 25 (AP)—The stock exchange committee announced today from tomorrow all dealings must be for cash and may not be continued from day to day.

New York, Sept. 25 (AP)—The stock market fluctuated erratically today, pushing up vigorously in the first hour, then falling back about as fasts as it went up, losing much of its advance by mid-day.

Atchison Railroad shot up nearly 8, then reacted about 4. Gains of 2 or 3 points in New York Central, American Telephone, Union Pacific and DuPont were about cancelled. Eastman showed a loss of 2 points.

Several other gains of 1 to 2 points, however, were maintained, but the tendency was downward. Unsettlement in the Paris bourse was presumably a factor.

Call money renewed at 1½ per cent.

Hit-and-Run Driver Held After Chase

After being chased for a mile by Mrs. Gertrude S. Heylman, 35, of Broadway, North Saugus, following an accident which occurred on Bucknam st., Everett, Antonio Di Neseo, 40, of 133 Main st., Everett, was arrested in Melden, last night on a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

According to the woman the automobile she was driving was run into by a machine operated by Di Neseo on Bucknam st., Everett.

Wages Slashed, So Mill Cuts Rents

Manchester, N. H., Sept. 25—A rental reduction of 10 per cent on all property owned by the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company and occupied by employes has been ordered by the management, it was announced last night. The reduction was said to have followed acceptance of a 10 per cent wage reduction by the operatives.

Swarthmore College Treasurer Suicide

Moorestown, N. J., Sept. 24 (AP)—Charles T. Brown, 53, treasurer of Swarthmore College and president of the Franklin Printing Co. of Philadelphia, shot and killed himself in his home today.

A member of the family said ill health was the reason for the act. A graduate of Swarthmore in the class of 1898. He received a degree from Harvard in 1899.

Dunstan Divorce to Highest State Court

In a final effort to have the divorce decree obtained by his wife, Mrs. Ruth Halpin Dunstan of Ayer and Brookline, set aside, Capt. Edward V. Dunstan, West Point army officer, will appeal the case to the Supreme Court.

OFFICER NEAR DEATH IN FIGHT

Harrington of Jamaica Plain Badly Beaten by Three Men; Shoots One

One man faced court, another was guarded at City Hospital and a third was sought today for last night's attack on Patrolman Edward Harrington of Jamaica Plain that may prove fatal.

Harrington is reported dying from a fractured skull received in a beating at Washington and Williams st., Jamaica Plain, at the hands of three thugs.

In a nearby ward, Amadeo Rispaino, 21, of 146 Washington st., Franklin, was guarded by police. Doctors will remove from his leg one of three bullets fired by Harrington at his assailants.

Anthony Margurite, 19, of 233 Washington st., Franklin, was taken to West Roxbury court, where a hearing for assault with intent to kill was postponed for a week.

Police closed in on a third youth, whom police said has been missing from his usual haunts since the assault.

LACKED REGISTRATION

According to police, the battle started when Harrington stopped a truck without lights in Washington st., Jamaica Plain. He asked the driver, who, police allege was

BANKER FOUND DROWNED

Marblehead, Sept. 25—The body of George F. Very, 68, retired banker and member of a prominent Salem family, was found on the beach at Wyman's Cove last night.

For many years Very was a teller at a bank in Boston. He retired last June.

The body was found about 20 feet below the high water mark by Walter O'Neil, who summoned Patrolman John Collier. Nearby on the beach was Very's hat, coat and umbrella.

Very was seen by school children yesterday walking on the railroad tracks in the direction of Wyman's Cove.

Although Medical Examiner James E. Simpson did not give out his report after examining the body, Marblehead and Salem police intimated that the case was one of suicide by drowning.

East Boston Fire Makes Dozen Flee

Fire of unknown origin forced more than a dozen men from a lunch room at 1014 Bennington st., in the Orient Heights section of East Boston, early today, and caused damage estimated at $1,000.

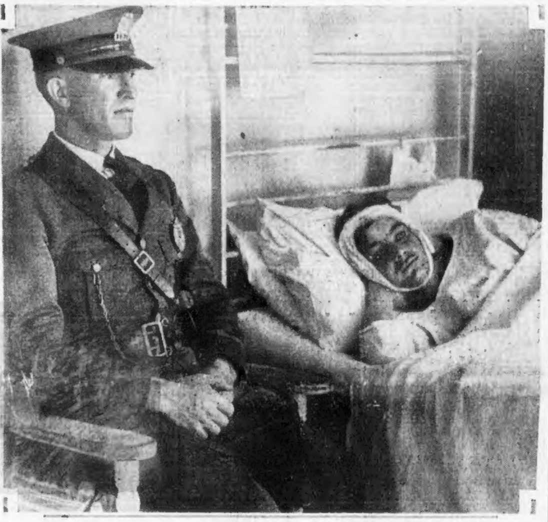
Fire officials say the blaze started in the cellar of a meat market at No. 1016, from where it spread to several neighboring stores. The majority of the damage was caused by smoke and water.

450,000 Tons of Wheat for China

Nanking, China, Sept. 25 (AP)—T. V. Soong, minister of finance for the Nationalist government, announced the completion today of the agreement whereby China will purchase from the American Farm Board 450,000 tons of wheat.

The grain will be used in relief for the millions of China's flood sufferers.

Bullet Takes Fight Out of Thug



OFFICER WALSH — AMADEO RISPAINO

Amadeo Rispaino, 21, is one of three in a truck from Franklin who pounced upon Patrolman Harrington of Jamaica Plain when he stopped them for having no lights on their car. Harrington was clubbed mercilessly and may die. In the fight, however, he put a bullet in Rispaino's thigh. That stopped the fight. A boy, Anthony Margurite, was caught; the third fled. The wounded man [illegible] guarded in City Hospital by Patrolman Walsh of Jamaica Plain. He will face court later, on a charge of intent to kill. (Staff photo.)

Death of Five in Auto on Track Being Probed

Tyngsboro, Sept. 25—An investigation into the crash in which five men were killed here last night when their automobile was struck by a Montreal express was ordered today by Director Henry W. Seward of the Railroad, Railway and Bus division of the State Department of Public Utilities.

Inspector John H. Parant was immediately assigned to probe the accident and fix responsibility for the crash which brought instant death to five members of a Lowell Military band who had played at the annual clambake of the exclusive Yorick Club at the Martin Luther playgrounds here.

The dead are:

VENDITUOLI, Michael, 39, of Elm st., North Billerica.

LOONEY, Edward C., 50, of 2 Rockdale ave., Lowell.

BAGLEY, William J., 45, of 118 Wentworth ave., Lowell.

BUCKLEY, James H., 50, of 22 Starbird st., Lowell.

The engineer of the Alouette, crack B. & M. express from Boston to Montreal, was the only witness. From his story, it appears that the auto stalled on the crossing. The express bore down on it at a speed of 50 miles an hour.

George H. Pearson of Medford, the engineer, said he saw an auto on the crossing, which is on a curve, as he approached. He blew several blasts on his whistle and continued, striking the car a few seconds later and hurling it 125 feet.

The crash occurred at a private crossing about one and one-half miles from the Tyngsboro station and about seven miles from Lowell. According to Chauncey G. Hubbell, in charge of statistics at the State Registry of Vehicles, the crash was the worst of its kind in years.

NEW RAIDS BY JAPS CHARGED

Peiping, Sept. 25 (INS)—New seizures by Japanese troops of stations on the Peiping-Mukden railway were charged today by Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, governor of Manchuria, in a report to Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese delegate at Geneva. Chang asked that another protest be made to the League of Nations.

Edward Clark Carter of New York, American delegate to the Pan-Pacific conference in Hangchow Oct. 21, arrived here today and conferred with members of Marshal Chang's staff.

Carter said that while he was in Moscow Sept. 8 Russian officials predicted early Japanese military operations in Manchuria.

Japanese at Mukden have advised American officials that the total number of Japanese troops in Manchuria is 15,000, as permitted by the Portsmouth treaty.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Sept. 25 (INS)—Capt. Frank Hawks today flew from Schenectady, N. Y., in 39 minutes, averaging 221 miles an hour for the 144 miles.

CRIME EXPOSE ROCKS N. Y.

New York, Sept. 25 (INS)—Political New York was rocking today from the force with which the lid covering the alleged secret alliance between crime and gambling with politics had been ripped off.

Revelations before the Hofstadter legislative investigating committee today included these developments:

Testimony by Police Inspector Charles Stilson that a double murder in a Tammany club during a card game five years ago had never been thoroughly investigated by police or the district attorney's office.

Disclosures by Police Captain Lewis J. Valentine that four gangsters confessed after a hold-up they lost thousands of dollars gambling in Tammany clubs.

Charges that professional gambling was common in a well-known Republican club.

Stilson testified that although Lorenzo Fuzzio was wanted for killing Patsy Griffo, one-time assistant sergeant-at-arms of the State Senate, and another man in the club no indictment was found against him, and a list of 30 witnesses disappeared.

Cart Tips Over, Killing Boy, 8

Lee, Sept. 25 (AP)—Angelo Pasetto, 8, was killed when an express wagon in which he and other boys were playing tipped over, fracturing his skull.

He was the third person in Lee to be fatally injured within 24 hours.

Jack Pickford's Condition Better

Beverly Hills, Cal., Sept. 23 (INS)—Slight improvement was noted today in the condition of Jack Pickford, brother of Mary Pickford. Dr. Carl Lewis announced Pickford was still seriously ill as the result of a severe cold.

COURT IS THRONGED AT DEATH HEARING

BULLETIN

Huntington, N. Y., Sept 24—Mrs. Benjamin Collings testified at the coroner's inquest today that she believed the two men who murdered her husband were bootleggers.

"My impression is they were bootleggers," she said. "From the way my husband talked I felt that they were bootleggers."

She began her story shortly before noon. She was pale. She testified in a nervous, weary voice so low that the coroner cautioned her to raise it.

By JAMES J. SMITH
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Huntington, N. Y., Sept. 25—A crowd jammed a courtroom here today to hear Mrs. Benjamin P. Collings' story of the murder of her husband.

The young, cultured daughter of a Boston musician was called to the witness stand at the inquest to tell, publicly for the first time, the bewildering story of a midnight murder by men who subjected her to a fiendish indignity when it was done.

FACES GRILLING

Her admittedly illogical story embracing murder, piracy, abduction and attack in the night on a yacht in Long Island Sound two weeks ago was to be subject of searching inquiry by Dist. Atty. Alexander Blue before Dr. William B. Gibson, coroner.

In the yacht of William B. Leeds, millionaire "tin-plate playboy," she came from Stamford, Ct., this morning across the chill sound waters that last week gave up the bound and battered body of her husband.

She reached the tiny court house at 11:05 and was escorted by special policemen through a large crowd of curious who, failing to gain seats in the court room, stood outside for a glimpse of her.

Her counsel, Judge William A. Kelly, accompanied her, and both expected that a half hour on the witness stand would suffice.

But Dist. Atty. Blue, indicating that he would probe every phase of her story, said he anticipated she would be required to appear again tomorrow.

The Suffolk prosecutor indicated that his questioning of Mrs. Collings would particularly stress the failure of Collings and herself to use an available gun to rout the two pirates she says boarded the Penguin, and her desertion of her five-year-old daughter, Barbara, on the drifting, unlighted cruiser.

The child, herself, will be called

LEGION BEER VOTE MAY FORCE CONGRESS TO ACT

BATTLE OVER ISSUE SEEN BY WALSH

Montana Senator Predicts a Change Due; Drys Scoff at Stand of Vets

Washington, Sept. 25 (AP)—A series of prohibition rumblings precipitated in the capital by word of a new federal beer inquiry, appeared likely today to echo into 1932.

With the American Legion's vote in favor of a referendum lending fresh impetus, reaction ranged from praise and condemnation to a proposal that a resubmission plank be placed in the 1932 Democratic platform. Added was a forecast from a dry Senator of a lively beer fight in the coming Congress.

Senator Bulkley, Democratic anti-prohibitionist from Ohio, suggested that his party agree upon resubmitting the Eighteenth Amendment to the people rather than argue upon the merits of prohibition.

FARM DATA SOUGHT

Senator Walsh of Montana forecast agitation for beer legislation in the next Congress. Known as a constitutional authority, the Western Democrat, a dry, gave as his opinion that repeal or modification of the Volstead Act would not constitute nullification of the Eighteenthe Amendment.

Meantime, there was fresh ferment in the disclosure by secretary Hyde that the effect upon the farmer of legalizing beer would be ascertained.

A government official reported that some beer data already had been gathered by the department of agriculture. These figures, he said, indicated that a legalizing of brewing might do the farmer more harm than good in that the market for dairy products might be reduce.d.

Data was shown of the increased sale of these products with the coming of prohibition.

ONLY 'JUST TALK'

Moreover, it was the stated opinion of another high Federal executive that talk of legalizing beer—whatever the effect—would never go beyond the conversational stage.

Reactions to the American Legion's referendum proposal were numerous. The Anti-Saloon League said in a statement the vote did "not reflect the sentiment of the country and probably not of the legion itself."

The league contended that until the legion produced a satisfactory alternative to prohibition its resolution "will not be taken seriously."

Henry H. Curran, president of the association against the prohibition amendment, said in a statement he believed the legion's majority vote for resubmission of the Eighteenth Amendment would be answered by similar majority of the nation's voters "against any further continuation of the preposterous experiment of national prohibition."

through the door, and tell what he did to make the world safe?

Washington, like every other community, discusses wage reductions by great corporations.

W. R. Hearst's Washington newspaper, the Herald, printed yesterday morning this article:

"Wage cuts aggravate depression," which includes the plain statement, "the immediate cause for this cut in wages is the difficulty that corporations have in paying dividends on their stock, but the actual and elemental cause is the issuance, by these corporations, of more stock than they are capable of paying dividends on

"If corporations issue stock to the limit of their capacity to pay dividends in good times, they will not be able to pay dividends upon it, in bad times."

There is the truth in two paragraphs—stock inflation in boom, wage cutting in depression.

It has been the custom usually, in hard times, to begin with wage cuts, and discharging, immediately, without loss of time. President Hoover deserves thanks for using his influence and authority to postpone the wholesale wage cuts, this time, by two years.

Immediately following the slump, he summoned the great industrialists and pledged them against cutting wages and wholesale discharging of men. Thousands of workers owe to that effort the fact that 1929 wages have been continued until now.

JOBLESS MADE TO PICK COTTON

Helena, Ark., Sept. 25 (AP)—Smoke curled from dozens of campfires in the hills surrounding Helena today as jobless Negroes lolled in the shade and watched a number of unemployed white men and Negroes beginning their second day of enforced cotton picking.

An immediate exodus of Negro loiterers followed the edict of authorities that unemployed must go to the cotton fields, leave the city or face vagrancy charges.

A house to house canvass for hiding unemployed was in prospect today after police were informed that Phillips County planters needed at least 1000 more cotton pickers.

Other unemployed, who disliked picking cotton at 35 cents a hundred pounds, and sought to remain in the city, were busy today hunting odd jobs.

Brookline Doctor Among Auto Victims

Biddeford, Me., Sept. 25—Mary Parker, Portsmouth, N. H.; Abbie L. Bosworth of Elgin, Ill., and Dr. R. C. Rosenberg, of Brookline, Mass., were in a local hospital last night for injuries suffered in a collision between two automobiles on the State road near here.

Jack Frost Does His Stuff and Lays 3 Bandits Cold

Bensenville, Ill., Sept. 25 (AP)—Jack Frost is on the job.

He was standing in front of a filling station when three men attempted to hold him up. He seized two of them and knocked their heads together. Then he slapped the third one down.

After the trio had been taken to jail, they became curious and asked the jailer who was the stranger with the quick fists.

Robbers Meet Old Weapon and Flee

St. Louis, Sept. 25—An old ally of bandits has spoken in the cause of law and order.

Robbers attempted to hold up a brokerage office. Evett D. Nix fished an ancient single-action pistol out of a brief case and fired one shot. The robbers fled.

The gun was one Nix took from Bill Doolin, a member of the Dalton Gang, in the old days when Nix was a deputy U. S. marshal in Oklahoma.

Plan Cut in Coal Output

Washington, Sept. 25—President Hoover was advised today that coal operators are trying to reduce output to curb over-production.

OSGOOD SEEKS RENO DIVORCE

William Fogg Osgood, one of the world's most noted mathematicians and a professor at Harvard since 1893, has filed suit in Reno for a divorce from his wife, the former Therese Ruprecht, a member of a prominent German family, charging mental cruelty, according to word received here.

The report came as a shock to faculty members and a large number of friends of the couple in Boston and Cambridge. They made their home on Avon Hill st, Cambridge. The couple, according to word received here last night in conjunction with the news of the professor's suit, have already agreed upon a substantial property settlement for Mrs. Osgood.

There are three children. The Osgoods were married at Gottingen, Germany, in 1890, after a romance which began when the professor was completing a long series of post-graduate courses at German universities. Prof. Osgood is 67.

Two German Liners Tied Up at Hoboken

New York, Sept. 25—Because of the congestion of unemployed shipping in German ports the two largest liners of the Hamburg American transatlantic fleet, the Reliance and the Resolute, were tied up yesterday to their Hoboken dock until their winter cruises.

KANE IN SECRET MEETING WITH WIDOW

Woman Sought in Death Probe Believed Hiding in Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Sept. 25 (US)—A secret meeting between Professor Elisha Kent Kane, his cousin-attorney, E. Kent Kane, and Mrs. Elizabeth Harris Dahl, sought in connection with the case of Professor Kane, charged with murdering his wife, today was reported to have taken place in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Dahl, a former stewardess on the United States line steamships Leviathan and America, who has eluded all attempts of Virginia authorities to locate her is said to be in hiding here.

FLED NEW YORK

Francis Fisher Kane, Philadelphia attorney and also a cousin of the accused professor, refused to deny that Mrs. Dahl is in Philadelphia and that he has interviewed her.

The widow whose letters to the Tennessee professor brought her name into the Virginia drowning mystery, fled New York when news of her former friendship with the accused man became public.

ON MOTOR TRIP

The belief that Prof. Kane was in conference with Mrs. Dahl in or near Philadelphia is seemingly substantiated by the fact that immediately after the postponement of his hearing in Hampton, Va., he departed by motor with his cousin and lawyer, E. Kent Kane, with the announcement that they would be gone two days.

Mrs. Dahl is described as an attractive, slender, vivacious woman of forty-five, with reddish-brown hair and gray-blue eyes. Although she was only a stewardess on transatlantic liners, she is said to have stopped at the ultra-exclusive Savoy Hotel in London, and in a Park ave apartment in New York during stays on shore.

BRIDE TO HAVE 13 MILLIONS

New York, Sept. 25 (AP)—Miss Isabel G. Koss, who received New York city property assessed at $13,000,000 under the will of the late Miss Ella Virginia von Etchell Wendel, will be married Oct. 8 to Joseph Norris Murray of Englewood, N. J.

Miss Koss was one of the most intimate friends of Miss Wendel who died March 13, and in addition to the city property was bequeathed Miss Wendel's favorite home at Irving-on-Hudson and its contents, other property near there and property in the village of Abbotsford, N. Y.

Miss Wendel expressed the hope the country home would be used personally by Miss Koss or be leased for residential purposes. She specified that the city property was to be used for the upkeep of the suburban holdings.

Miss Koss' father, Charles G. Koss, was an attorney for the Wendel family.

Revolt in Costa Rica

In Court Fight

Mrs. Gladys Billings of New York has opened fight in Salem Court to gain custody of her daughter, Jean, 10, from her former husband, John L. Saltonstall. Since the couple's divorce in 1927, the girl has divided her time between mother and father.

WAR ON NOISES IN CITY OPENS

Dr. Henry A. Christian, professor of medicine at the Harvard Medical School, is to lead the war on the suppression of unnecessary noises in this city.

Prof. Christian was elected chairman of the Boston Noise Abatement Commission yesterday at City Hall by a group of civic leaders appointed by Mayor Curley to make a study of the noise problem here in co-operation with the City Planning Board.

George K. Manson, chief engineer of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Co., was elected vice-chairman, and Miss Elizabeth M. Herlihy of the City Planning Board, secretary.

VETS IN BONUS PROTEST RIP OFF BUTTONS

Tennessee Post to Find Why Members Voted Against Dry Referendum

Detroit, Sept. 25—More than 200 World War veterans, at a meeting at the Sawtelle Soldiers' Home, in Los Angeles, destroyed their Legion cards and buttons in protest against the failure of the convention to adopt resolutions for immediate cash payment of the bonus.

The Memphis, Tenn., post of the American Legion has demanded the names of the 31 State delegates who voted against the prohibition referendum. The post adjutant was instructed to ascertain "whether or not the Tennessee delegation was bound by a unit rule."

PUBLIC WILL DECIDE

Henry L. Stevens, Jr., new national commander, today declared that the Legion had not thrown itself into the wet side of the prohibiton controversy by adopting the resolution for a dry law referendum.

His statement was a reply to charges voiced by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals.

"The Legion has merely called for a popular expression of opinion on the prohibition question by the citizens of the United States," said Stevens.

"There were fewer drunks at this convention than I have ever seen at any other convention. A million of us have stood up for our Constitution and still support it."

WILSON IS SARCASTIC.

Dr. Wilson, in St. Joseph, Mo, had said:

"If you had seen the outfit gathered in Detroit, you would be surprised that 394 delegates could be found who would support the Constitution, decency and sobriety. The wet propaganda for which the Legion has been used has so alienated thousands that they no longer attend the conventions."

Col. Frederick M. Alger, president of the Legion Convention Corporation, said:

"If Dr. Wilson had been in Detroit he would have seen more than 90,000 men, entirely sober, marching down the street. I would advise that Dr. Wilson find out what he is talking about."

The new national commander Henry L. Stevens, Jr., is a lawyer in Warsaw, N. C. He is 35, and the youngest man to be elected to the position. He saw long service in France.

Damper Looms for the Legion Dry Law Stand

Detroit, Sept. 25 (INS)—The American Legion's attack on the Eighteenth Amendment, with a suggestion for a prohibition referendum by the states, provoked a drive among its leaders today to keep the soldier organization out of the national political arena.

The new Legion administration, headed by Henry L. Stevens, will take no action on the wet and dry issue until a meeting of the executive committee in Indianapolis in November.

Mrs. Wetherill May File Counter-Divorce

Philadelphia, Sept. 25—Mrs. Justine Jordan Wetherill, socially prominent matron of this city, may bring counter-suit against her husband, Giles P. Wetherill, who has sought divorce, it was learned today.

Mrs. Wetherill

Wetherill instituted divorce proceedings against his wife, who is a relative of King George V of England, in Reno, Nev., a short time ago. Cruelty was the reason he gave.

Wetherill is the son of Col. Samuel Price Wetherill, Jr., wealthy Philadelphian, who shared with his sisters in the $5,266,925 estate left by his father.

Sophie Tucker Loses Long Race With Death

Sophie Tucker

Miss Tucker was in Europe when she heard that her trouper-friend and protege, Mrs. Eva Mandel Wolf, was seriously ill. The comedienne cut short her European engagements, rushed to New York by fast steamer, cancelled a New York engagement, and hurried here.

Last night, aboard the train, she received word of Mrs. Wolf's death.

Pope Jokes About French Gold Hoard

Rome, Sept. 25—A jocular allusion to gold hoarding by France enlivened the address made by Pope Pius XI to 1200 young French workmen, pilgrims to the Vatican City, last night.

Pope Pius

The pilgrims made the journey despite the "depression" period. The Pope congratulated them on making the pilgrimage in times of economic stress.

"Since it is certain that all the gold which is rumored to be accumulated in France undoubtedly did not go into the hands of young workmen."

Traylor Is the Boy That "Made Good"

Columbia, Ky., Sept. 25 (AP)—A "home-own" boy who went west on the first train he ever saw—a freight train—and made good in a big way, was honored today by the home town he never forgot.

M. A. Traylor

Thirty-one years ago Melvin A. Traylor, then a youth of 22, shook the dust of Adair County from his shoes and headed for the cattle country. He landed in Texas with $2 in his pockets—his total assets.

Today, as president of the First National Bank of Chicago, he is one of the West's financial leaders and the choice of his own people for the Democratic nomination for President of the United States.

Civic and political leaders from all over Kentucky were here today to participate in a "home town rally" which they hope will give impetus to a move to send Mr. Traylor to Washington.

There were brass bands on the streets and a "country ham and chicken dinner" was the noon attraction. The afternoon was set aside for speeches at the fair grounds.

Identifies Thief

Mrs. S. Stanwood Menken, wife of noted New York attorney, who has identified Nick Green, alleged kidnaper, as leader of gang that invaded her home recently and stole $200,000 in gems. Green is held in the Charles Rosenthal kidnap case. His arrest may now solve gem theft. (I.N.R.)

$200,000 JEWEL THIEF IN JAIL

New York, Sept. 25 (NS)—The mystery of the $200,000 jewel robbery in the home of Mrs. S. Stanwood Menken, society matron, may be solved as a result of the capture of the kidnapers of Charles M. Rosenthal for $50,000 ransom.

Mrs. Menken today identified Nick Green, who is in prison charged with participating in the abduction, as the leader of the bandits who, after binding and gagging her, forced her to hand over the gems worth a fortune.

PREMIER BACK IN LONDON

London, Sept. 25 (AP)—Prime Minister MacDonald returned to his residence at 10 Downing st. today, appearing greatly refreshed after a few days' holiday in the country.

It was made clear that his return was not in the nature of an official recall, and that he was going to his country home at Chequers for he week-end as originally planned.

King George was understood today to be opposed to an early dissolution of Parliament and a general election on a protective issue. He was said to be averse to terminating the tenure of the national government until it had put its economy program into effect and restored world confidence in the English pound.

'4 Horseman' Theory of Malthus Called 'Balderdash'

London, Sept. 25 (INS)—The Malthusian theory—that population increases geometrically and its food supply arithmetically, is "balderdash," the British Association for advancement of science was told today at its centenary meeting.

Dr. Edwin Cannon, London University Professor Emeritus of political economy was the speaker.

Food supply has more than kept pace and the rate of increase in population is slowing up, he said.

GOVERNOR WILL START REVIEW NEXT WEEK

Lawyers Still Debate Scharton's "Expose" of Former Client's "Murder Secret"

An exhaustive study of all the old and new evidence in the Gallo-Cero case was begun today by Fred Dillon, one of Governor Ely's secretaries, on orders of the Governor.

Dillon said he believed the study, in which the Governor will take a hand early next weekk, will consume most of the 30 days' respite granted to Samuel Gallo.

Formal notice of the respite was takken to Gallo today at Charles st. jail, where he will remain while his attorneys, Vincent Garro and Thomas H. Mahoney, fight to save him from the electric chair for the murder of Joseph Fantasia.

"THANKS FOR LIFE"

Lawyers were still eagerly discussing the case today, debating the action of Atty. William R. Scharton, formerly counsel for Cero, who was originally convicted, but saved at the eleventh hour and acquitted in a new trial, at which Gallo was found guilty, is in Italy.

"Thank you," was all Gallo said when Deputy Sheriff Morris handed him the formal notice of the 30 days' respite.

His sweetheart, Lillian Ruggiero, had carried him the news yesterday, according to jail attaches. Miss Ruggiero is one of those whose statements bulk large in the fight for his life.

She declares he was with her the day of the shooting of Fantasia, but she did not come forward with this alibi previously because Gallo had told her there was no need of exposing her relations with him, as he would be acquitted anyway.

MAY CALL GALLAGHER

Governor Ely does not intend to call in any witnesses for questioning, in Dillon's opinion, but the secretarp added the chief executive would gladly hear any witnesses that Attorneys Garro and Mahony wished to present.

One of the latter will doubtless be Attorney Daniel J. Gallagher, who was formerly counsel for Philomena Romano. She originally accused Cero of the crime, then helped save Cero by accusing Gallo.

U. S. MUST 'FACE MUSIC': REED

Washington, Sept. 25 (AP)—Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, after re-advocating to President Hoover today his proposal for a sales tax, said he believed the United States should follow Great Britain's example and "face the music."

Reed said he believed that unless additional moneys were raised by taxation the Treasury's deficit would reach beyond $1,500,000.

The Republican senator called upon the President principally to congratulate him upon his address to the American Legion which, Reed said, "apparently has killed the bonus move."

2 SAVED FROM BURIAL ALIVE

Providence, Sept. 25—Two men, buried in the cavein of a sewer trench, were rescued by firement and volunteers at Whitney and Alger sts.

Roberto Turcoletto, 49, of 80 Door st., was completely covered by the earth and Alberto Dabito, 23, of Woodward rd., was buried up to his neck.

The men were guiding the shovel of a steam-controlled digger when the walls of the trench collapsed.

Both were treated by Dr. George Conde at Rhode Island Hospital, showed no serious injuries but were held for X-ray treatment.

Courting of Co-eds Costs Dime an Hour

Magnolia, Ark., Sept. 25—Magnolia A. & M. College swains who felt compelled to court a co-ed last night courted at the rate of 10 cents an hour.

The "dime-a-date" money is payable at the end of each hour and the total receipts will be placed in a pool to buy needed equipment for the girls' recreation rooms.

NANCY 'PICKED RIGHT MAN'

Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.

London, Sept. 25—Lady Nancy Astor, Virginia-born member of British Parliament, has ably demonstrated the ability of American women to take care of themselves, even in the sometimes bitter repartee that imparts color to the House of Commons.

During a debate on the test by which applicants for the unemployment dole must show they have no other means of support, A. W. Haycock, Labor M. P., singled out Lady Nancy and hurled at her:

"You were lucky enough to choose your husband!"

"How?" she asked, and Haycock responded:

"You income taxpayers and society people don't have to go into the details of your private life as the poor do except when you have to explain matters to your creditors and tell them how you backed the wrong horse both ways.

"You wouldn't tolerate the treatment being accorded the poor."

Lady Astor replied:

DAYLIGHT TIME OFF SUNDAY

Well—we get back that hour of sleep Sunday morning.

Daylight saving for 1931 officially ends at 2 a. m., when all clocks should be moved back an hour.

As in years past most of the timepieces will be adjusted at retiring time Saturday night.

The usual quota, however, will probably forget to do it and have a repetition of that Sunday last April when they were late for church, golf, motoring, or other off day pursuits. Th's time they'll be too early.

Railroad schedules will return to normal after a summer of double figuring by travelers on daylight and standard time.

Man Held in Circus Performer's Death

Belfast, Sept. 25 (US) — Eddie Cullens, who claims to be a naturalized American of Turkish birth, was today charged with the murder of Achmet Musa, a Turkish circus performer, whose unclad body was found at Carrick Fergus, County Antrim, last week. Musa is said to at one time have been a member of the entourage of Zaro Agha, the Turk who toured Britain and the United States claiming to be 154 years old.

MURPHY LAUGHS AT KIDNAPERS

Some "small-time henchman" of Mayor J. Fred Manning of Lynn is responsible for the telephone threats made against Miss Esther Murphy, 17-year-old law school student, her father, Michael J. Murphy, a mayoralty candidate, charged today.

Threats of kidnaping have been received for the past three weeks, Murphy said. Each call was made by the same man.

"I don't mind the threats against me, but they might leave my daughter out of it," said Murphy.

ZION COLONY ON VERGE OF BREAK

Zion City, Ill., Sept. 25 (INS)—Dissension threatened the religious colony here today as the result of a vociferous outburst in the tabernacle against Wilbur Glenn Voliva, ruler of Zion City.

Consternation was created amid the 1000 worshippers when Deacon Theodore Forby arose and defied the cult leader, who is best known for his theory that the world is flat.

"I'll expose you," the Deacon shouted, after uttering several charges against voliva.

Alaskan Dog Hero Is Called Fake; Want Statue Removed

New York Sept. 25 (AP)—A Central Park dog smarted today from a kick in the ribs by the Vaccination Research Association.

The association has asked Mayor Walker to tear down the park statue of Balto, claiming that Balto was not the dog-hero he was painted. So far as the association can learn, Balto was just an ordinary dog, and the association sees no sense in perpetuating his memory.

Balto was the dog credited with having made a spectacular dash to Nome several years ago carrying much-needed antitoxin.

The association says the story was a "hoax pure and simple."

Miss Work Says Friend's Mate Never Showed Any Affection for Her

Miss Georgia Work of 135 Audubon rd., whose 12-year friendship with Mrs. Maude E. Scanlon ended over a bridge whist game, testified in the alienation suit of Mrs. Scanlon's husband that he never indicated any affection for her.

She said she never had any affection for Scanlon.

Scanlon seeks $100,000 from George D. Pike, 67, of Gardner rd., Brookline. The suit is being heard in Suffolk Superior Court.

JUROR EXCUSED

One of the jurors, Harry H. Nelson of 27 Lakeville place, Jamaica Plain, collapsed yesterday. Dr. Jacob Snyder of Boylston st., witness in the case, advised that Nelson retire. The case, by agreement, then went forward with 11 jurors.

The deposition of Thomas McQuaine, house officer of a New York hotel, was read, and photostatic copies of registration cards showed that Pike registered at the hotel March 7, 1928, at 3:48 p. m., and checked out on March 10 at 7:54 p. m. He had room 1316A on the 13th floor. Mrs. Maude E. Scanlon registered at the hotel March 9, at 7:36 a. m., and checked out within three minutes of the time Mr. Pike did on the 10th, at 7:57 p. m.

DRINKING DENIED

A superintendent of the shipping and transportation department of the department store where Scanlon said he worked 15 years ago, testified that Scanlon left because he wanted to better himself, that he never noticed any liquor on him, and that if Scanlon had been drinking he would not have kept the job.

The end of Mrs. Scanlon's deposition was read, yesterday. She admitted that she had registered at New York hotels under assumed names and did it for her own pleasure.

She was then asked if she and "Mr. K" had occupied stateroom 382 on a steamer from New York to Boston on the night of March 14, 1926, and she made answer that this had nothing to do with the case against Pike.

It's an Old Trick, but This Woman Stood It Two Hours

Washington, Sept. 25 (INS)—Mrs. Margaret McLean was waiting at a bus terminal as the New York kbus came in. A young, well-dressed woman, carrying a baby and a bag, alighter and asked Mrs. McLean to hold them "for a few minutes."

Mrs. McLean stood there, holding the baby and guarding the bag for nearly two hours. Then she notified the police. The baby was taken to Gallinger Hospital.

GERARD RAPS SHORT SELLING

New York, Sept. 25 (AP)—James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany, today declared he believed short selling on the New York stock market to be unconstitutional.

"In my opinion," he said, "it is against the constitution of the State of New York, because the constitution provides no gambling shall be permitted in the state, and short selling is certainly gambling that a certain stock will go down."

Recalling that there was a law against short selling in New York State from 1812 to 1858, Mr. Gerard said he had drawn a bill to curb the practice last winter and that it was introduced in the legislature by one of his business associates, Assemblyman Patrick H. Sullivan. It was not reported out of the committee at the last session, but he said it would be pushed this winter.

THEATER WAR ENDS SATURDAY

The Gilbert & Sullivan war in Boston between the Erlangers and Shuberts is to come to an end Saturday night with the closing of the Lyric by the Shuberts, where "Pinafore," which opened last night, will continue through the week, according to officials at the theater.

The Shubert company booked in to Boston following the announcement by the Erlanger interests that a four weeks' season of Gilbert & Sullivan operettas would be given at the Colonial by a company brought direct from five months in New York. The Shubert company opened one week ahead of the Colonial organization, with "The Mikado."

"The Mikado" was also the bill offered by the Civic Light Opera Co., which opened at the Colonial Monday of this week, giving Boston the choice of two "Mikados," for perhaps the first time in 40 years or more.

JOSEPH A. RICH DEAD, AGED 65

Joseph A. Rich, 65, one of the most widely known wholesale fish dealers of Boston, died today in his home, 92 Manet rd., Newton, following several months' illness.

When news of his death reached the Fish Pier in South Boston, flags were placed at half-staff.

Mr. Rich was a native of Provincetown, son of a fisherman, was widely known for his charities and was a member of many fraternal organizations.

He leaves a widow, Mrs. Lillian Rich; a brother, Chester Rich, who lives in Waterbury, Ct., and a sister, Una, who lives in Los Angeles.

The funeral will be held Sunday at 2:30 p. m., with Masonic Knights Templars services in his home.

Mr. Rich divorced his first wife, Mrs. Nina Gordon George Rich in Reno, Nev., in April, 1924, soon after he was released from Deer Island, where he served seven months of a nine months' term. He was one of 14 members of the so-called $8,000,000 Fish Trust convicted of conspiracy to keep up food prices in war time.

TWO INJURED IN LOWELL CRASH

Lowell, Sept. 25—Two youths and a girl were injured early today when a sedan collided with a truck in tow on Moody st.

Edward J. Bagley, 21, assistant manager of the Strand theater, and his girl companion in the sedan, Miss Ethel M. Sanders of Pine st., were treated by a nearby doctor, and taken to their homes.

William V. McLaughlin, 19, of Lexington st., Charlestown, was taken to St. John's Hospital, however, believed to be suffering from a fractured skull. He was a passenger on the truck.

DEATH TO BEES ENDS INVASION

The busy little bees improved no shining hour in Commonwealth ave., Swampscott, today, because they were all dead.

Three weeks ago a carpenter left a chink in the outer wall of Gorham Dermody's new house and a swarm of bees took possession.

One morning Mr. Dermody woke up to find himself wearing a mask of bees and lay still until they went away.

Then he called in George W. Foster of Orient ct., an old beekeeper who, with hands covered with honey induced the bees to swarm, walk out of the house, covered with them and drowned them. Others were driven out by a vaccum cleaner and also drowned. Last night the cold killed the few remaining.

Raspaino, for his license and registration.

Police say the driver produced the license but had no registration and the officer ordered the driver to drive to the police station. Instead, it is alleged, the trio leaped upon Harrington, wrested his club from him and started to beat him.

Harrington was repeatedly struck with his own club and finally when he felt himself being overpowered, he drew his gun and fired three shots.

Rispaino was struck but continued to fight. The shots aroused the entire district and also drew the attention of Patrolman Philip Maguire, of the Athens st. station, who was off duty at the time.

AIDED BY WITNESSES

He rushed to the scene and seized Rispaino and Margurite with the aid of several witnesses. The third man escaped. Maguire summoned police and Harrington and Rispaino were rushed to the hospital. The officer collapsed on the way and is now reported in a grave condition.

Deputy Supt. McDevitt and Inspector Harry Pierce learned that the men had delivered a truckload of produce here and were returning to Franklin when they were stopped. All three were sober at the time of the attack, police say.

CROWD HEARS WIDOW'S 'PIRATE' TALE

as a witness tomorrow, it was expected.

His announced intention to obtain from Mrs. Collings' lips every possible detail of the crime renewed a current report that Dist. Atty. Blue had reverted to his original opinion that the widow had not told the whole story.

He had publicly expressed doubt as to its authenticity. Following a 15-hour questioning of Mrs. Collings by his special investigator, Felix Di Martini, he announced the decision that she was cleared of culpability in the crime.

Later it was unofficially reported that this was Di Martini's decision and that he and the district attorney were at odds over it. It was even rumored that Blue having failed to get Mrs. Collings in court when the inquest opened, had employed a bit of strategy to assure her presence when it resumed.

Di Martini and Asst. Dist. Atty. Fred Munder were to aid Blue in his interrogation of Mrs. Collings.

CROWD ON HAND

The crowd gathered early outside the courthouse, eager for a glimpse of Mrs. Collings, more eager to hear her story under fire.

On the yacht to Oyster Bay from Stamford, she crossed the Sound for the third time in 24 hours; yesterday, at the behest of authorities, she made the trip to view—and free—two men suspected of being the "pirates" of her story.

The early morning breeze sweeping across the Sonnd sent a heavy spray flying over the decks. But the Stamford widow clung to the rail and gazed with unseeing eyes over the choppy sea. There was a hint of autumn in the chilling breeze that may have recalled by contrast the warm, happy days of summer when the Penguin roved the Sound with only her and her husband as the crew and their little daughter the only passenger.

If those memories were awakened in her tortured mind they failed to bring any outward show of emotion. She was the same self-contained woman who had stoically undergone hour after hour of merciless grilling at the hands of a dozen interrogaters.

Grouped about her at the courthouse were a number of officials who had publicly declared their disbelief in the story of the crime. It is no secret that their opinions have since undergone a change—that most are now ready to believe the same story in its entirety.

For them she had nothing but a brief and courteous nod. Her quiet dignity and remarkable composure set the case-hardened officials ill at ease, but Mrs. Collings gave no sign that she relished their discomfiture.

BOWS TO BLUE

Even Dist. Atty. Blue most outspoken of the misbelievers, received from her a slight bow of acknowledgment.

If Dist. Atty. Elvin R. Edwards of Nassau County had been present, he, too, might have been similarly favored, despite the fact that he withheld from newspapermen some details which would have shown that Mrs. Collings fought to the limit of her strength to save her husband from his murderers.

More than a week elapsed before the public was informed that she had rushed from cabin screaming demands that they untie her husband who had struggled unsuccessfully in their clutches.

In all the piecemeal sections of her story released to newspapermen there was no mention of the fact that she had thrown herself upon the murderers with all the strength in her frail body, only to be forced back into the cabin to watch behind barred doors while her husband was thrown, helplessly bound, into the sea to drown before her eyes.

The suspicion fastened upon Mrs. Collings since the morning after the murder was created, her attorneys contend, by the failure of officials to give a full and complete transcript of her testimony before them.

Important details which would have thrown a different light on the mystery were deliberately withheld by these officials, Judge Kelly charged in an interview with the Boston Evening American.

In support of this he points to a growing belief that political minded authorities saw in the widow's plight an opportunity for widespread publicity to be directed toward their activities.

Judge Kelly told a Boston Evening American reporter that he feared the procedure which Mrs. Collings might have to undergo at today's inquest.

"We are hopeful," Judge Kelly said, "that the authorities will not turn the inquest into a Roman holiday. She is near the point of exhaustion and her splendid courage might fail her if the questioning is prolonged. Proper examination should not require more than a half-hour. I hope the ordeal will not last much longer than that."

NEVER HANDLED GUN

Attorney Kelly in advance of the coroner's hearing, made public a list of questions that, he said, he expected thecoroner to ask. The list was accompanied by what Kelly said would be Mrs. Collings' answers, clearing up many of the apparent discrepancies in her original tale.

The questions and answers were as follows:

Q.—How do you explain your failure to come to your husband's aid, when the attackers first came aboard your yacht, the Penguin? A.—I relied on my husband's ability to handle all situations that confronted him. When I realized he was in grave danger I rushed out to help him, but was overpowered and thrust back in the cabin.

Q.—Why didn't you use the gun that was in the cabin?

A.—The use of a gun never occurred to me. I never handled a firearm in my life, and I didn't know where the gun was kept.

Q.—Why did you desert your child, apparently without putting up a struggle or screaming for help? A.—I was in a semi-conscious condition and was practically lifted from the yacht into the canoe. I just vaguely remember that part of it.

Q.—Why did you throw a rope and mattress overboard to your husband when you knew he was bound? A.—I acted in sheer desperation.

CRIED FOR HELP

Q.—What about the long trip from Lloyd's Neck to Stamford that you mentioned? A.—There wasn't any trip to Stamford. I was referring to lights that could be seen on the Connecticut shore.

Q—What about the long canoe trip you took with the murderers? A—It was not a long trip. I have since gone over the entire course with authorities and the distance is not great. It seemed much farther than it is.

Q.—Why did you make no outcry until a long time after you were set adrift in the speedboat Bo-Peep, although there was human aid about 50 yards away? A.—The minute I felt I was not jeopardizing my life I cried for help. I had been in the speedboat only a few minutes when I called.

Q.—How do you explain the paradox of the murderers' callous slaying of your husband and the attempted attack on yourself with their solicitude in leaving you warm blankets? A.—I think the murderers brought the blankets more for their own comfort than mine. They didn't want to be hampered with them when they started to escape.

Father to Join Mrs. Collings Tomorrow

Herman P. Chelius, father of Mrs. Benjamin Collings, will go to Stamford, Ct., tomorrow, to be with his daughter, it was said today at his home, 7 Moultrie st., Dorchester. It had been expected that the aged musician would return to Stamford in time to accompany Mrs. Collings to today's inquest of her husband's murder, but he found it impossible to leave before Saturday.

Wife Charges Page Made Death Threat

Charges that her husband kept a gun under his pillow at night, threatened to kill her and that he was cruel and abusive, are contained in an answer by Mrs. Martha D. Page of Wellesley to a divorce suit filed in Dedham yesterday by Miles G. Page.

Page charges his wife deserted him May 7, 1927. They were married in Fort Wayne, Ind., May 28, 1916 and have five children. Mrs. Page in her answer denied the charges.

Three Ex-Mayors in Malden Race

Ex-Mayor John V. Kimball, one of Malden's representatives on Beacon Hill, will enter the mayoralty contest, according to his close friends.

Representative Bert Dewar announced his candidacy for the mayoralty today. Mayor William A. Hastings is to be a candidate and there is a report that ex-Mayor John D. Devir will enter the contest.

Five Killed in Riots

Toledo, Spain, Sept. 25—Farm laborers, aided by women, today attacked civil guards in several villages southeast of Toledo. Five persons were reported killed and several wounded.

SURETY FIRMS BEING PROBED

Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney and Asst. U. S. Atty. Haven Parker have conferred on the question of accepting bail for liquor violators from certain surety companies alleged to be on the blacklist in Washington because of questionable methods.

A New York indemnity company was represented by an agent anxious to provide bail in a case and when the papers were laid before Commissioner Jenney he summoned Prosecutor Parker to examine them with him.

Parker checked up on the claims of the indemnity company by interviewing clerks in the State court and later conferring with the clerk of the federal court. Information gained was said to be favorable to the company, but other surety companies are under investigation by the government through the office of the prohibition administrative forces in Washington.

2 Held After Rum Is Found in Auto

Federal agents arrested George P. Walker, of Walker rd., Stoneham, said to be the proprietor of a ginger ale stand in the Middlesex Fells Parkway, and George M. Lilley of Waverley pl., Melrose, in Medford, after finding liquor in the automobile they were operating. The agents then made a search of Walker's stand. A quantity of home brew, they say, was seized in the rear of the stand.

U. S. ADMITS GYPSY KING

Ferryboat Brings Royal Suite In

New York, Sept. 25—After a six-day "exile" on Ellis Island, Racz Laczi XXXVI, king of Hungarian gypsies, landed, unruffled, at the Battery.

With his eight musicians, his wife, Queen Julia; his 10-year-old son and successor, Prince Racz Laczi, and his 16-year-old daughter, Princess Barbara, he came down the gangway of the ferryboat into the midst of a curious throng and let it be known he had not minded his detainment on Ellis Island.

The king was wearing a derby hat, an old raincoat and a wing collar, and carried a cane. Suspended by a strap from his neck was a handbag.

He was admitted under $500 bond. Racz Laczi claims to have played before the late Czar Nicholas of Russia and the late King Edward of England. This will be his first experience with American audiences.

CURLEY SPEAKS TONIGHT FOR PROSPERITY

William Randolph Hearst's plan for a $5,000,000,000 government Prosperity Loan to relieve business ills and banish unemployment will be vigorously set forth at a rousing mass meeting to be held at the Parkman bandstand, Boston Common, at 7 o'clock tonight.

The meeting is to be held under the auspices of the Workingmen's Club of Suffolk County. Mayor Curley is to be one of the speakers. Congressman William P. Connery, Jr., of Lynn and former Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley and Representative William Mellie of Chelsea will also voice the demand for the adoption of Mr. Hearst's plan.

Other speakers include James H. Brennan of the governor's council, Dr. Charles E. Mackey, former Fire Commissioner Theodore A. Glynn, Wendell P. Thore, Representative Anthony A. McNulty of Roxbury, Francis X. McInnis and Thomas J. Hannon, Jr.

Besides delegations from every section of Suffolk County, hundreds from other sections of metropolitan Boston will take part in the demonstration.

The meeting will be called to order by August Seaver, president of the club. Roy L. Dasher, commander of South End Post, American Legion, will preside.

Frank L. McGinniss of Charlestown is chairman of the general committee in charge of the demonstration. The arrangements are in charge of William Little.

Other members of the committee are John M. Brennan, George L. Wearin, William Burns, George Heumiller, Charles A. Chapin, Joseph G. Murphy, William O'Connell, Andrew Canavan, Charles Ross, William A. Mongeon, Michael P. Smith, John J. Gabbett, Peter Christi, Joseph Ciccio, Dominick Guerriero, John G. Johnston, Max Kohn and Pasquale Rotondo.

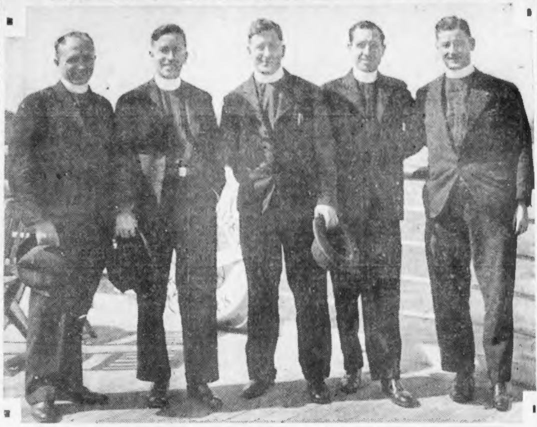
CALLED TO MISSION POSTS IN PORTO RICO



FR. CURLEY FR. BOWEN FR. BURKHARD FR. FITZGIBBONS FR. SIMON

PRIESTS SAIL TO NEW POSTS

The Rev. Edmund Bowen and William J. Fitzgibbons, both of Boston, are among the group of Redemptorist Fathers who sailed from New York yesterday on the S. S. Borinquen to take up mission posts in Porto Rico.

The young priests will fill their mission posts for the next three years. The experience will not be a new one for them, as both have been assigned to the Porto Rico missions in former years.

Both Fr. Bowen and Fr. Fitzgibbons are well known in Roxbury, where they were born and spent their early years. They are both of the group of six young men from the Mission Church Parish who were ordained in June, 1926.

500,000 ADDED TO LIST OF THE IDLE IN U. S.

Washington, Sept. 25 (AP)—A new estimate by organized labor of increased winter unemployment today lay before official Washington as it sought the nation's reaction to the wage reduction policy initiated by some major corporations.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, who denounced the wage-cutters as short-sighted and unethical, estimated that 5,600,000 persons in the United States are now idle.

This represented an increase of 500,000 over his estimate of a month ago, and he described prospects for the winter as "even more serious." He had forecast a winter total of 7,000,000, but in a more recent statement held "the usual fall gain in employment has not occurred this year."

Meanwhile, the silence which has clamped itself upon official spokesmen since announcement this week of large scale reductions was broken by a declaration of Secretary Doak that they were "deplorable."

At Providence, R. I., the labor secretary reiterated a belief wages should be maintained, but added the reductions "apparently could not be avoided."

GARFIELD TALKS ON HOUSING

Causes of slums were discussed by Abram Garfield of Cleveland, son of former President Garfield, at a luncheon sponsored by the Massachusetts Housing Association during he state conference of social work at the New Ocean house, Swampscott, today.

Mr. Garfield is a member of the President's conference on home building and ownership in Washington on December 2.

William H. Pear, general agent of the Boston Provident Association, opened the session of the Social Work conference with an address on the mounting costs of public relief.

"At best," he said, "charitable relief to the unemployed is a dangerous substitute for missing wages. It has allayed suffering during two years, but we should employ it only with an anxious eye to its gradual withdrawal, while we hope earnestly for better protective provisions in the industrial world."

ANTI-TRUST LAW FIGHT GROWS AT CAPITAL

Washington, Sept. 25 (AP)—Agitation for modification of the anti-trust laws has been renewed in Washington and attacks on certain aspects of the Sherman Act have received more than passing attention from President Hoover.

Within two days two leaders in the building construction world—Robert D. Kohn, president of the American Institute of Architects, and Charles F. Abbott, director of the American Institute of Steel Construction—have laid their complaints before the President.

Despite this agitation, Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, believes Congress will not repeal the anti-trust laws as a means of reviving business.

The oil industry has resorted to an inter-state compact in its effort to control production without violating the anti-trust statutes. The coal industry is contemplating the same move.

Half a League Backwards

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

The League of Nations has solved the Japanese-Chinese trouble in the fashionable west side of Manchuria.

It has given Japan sealed orders not to be opened until the war is over.

Up to date Japan has captured 15 Chinese cities and a Stimson note.

It's the first real test of the League's ability to bring disorder out of chaos. And this war hasn't even stopped for lunch.

Well, you can't understand the oriental mind. They say Gandhi laughed himself curly over Charlie Chaplin's funny clothes.

Somerville Police Site Is Rejected

By a vote of 12 to 3, the Somerville board of aldermen last night turned down the proposal that a new police station be erected on the site of the present station on Bow st.

This is the second site turned down thus far. The site favored by Mayor John J. Murphy, it was said last night, is in Union sq. This site will cost $92,000, although the assessment is only $36,000.

Police Plea Studied

No immediate action will be taken on the request of the Everett police force to have "house days" abolished. Mayor O'Neill is studying the plan.

Francis J. Fahey of Quincy Stricken

Francis J. Fahey, 55, for nearly 20 years probation officer at Quincy District Court, suffered a shock last night while standing in Weymouth Landing sq. He was taken to Weymouth Hospital, where doctors said he sustained a cerebral hemorrhage. His name was placed on the danger list. Fahey's home is at 98 Putnam st., Quincy.

HEARST ATTACK ON WAGE CUTS COMMENDED

Bay State Leaders See Action of Corporations as Blow at Standard of Living

William Randolph Hearst's editorial deploring the cutting of wages by several of the greatest corporations of the United States, printed in yesterday's Boston Evening American, has brought praise and favorable comment from prominent leaders of Massachusetts, as well as an expression of their full accord with Mr. Hearst's views.

Congressman John W. McCormack declared that "Mr. Hearst again displays his courage, and shows that he places the welfare of his country above every other material consideration."

Congressman William P. Connery, Jr., of Lynn, said that the outrageous cutting of wages by the big corporations is certainly driving people into Communism.

Comment on Mr. Hearst's editorial follows:

EVILS REVEALED

Congressman John W. McCormack:—

"The story of the effect of stock inflation during prosperous periods and the case against the continuance of that policy is clearly set forth in the editorial of Mr. Hearst. In the conduct of business the human element is usually the least considered.

"Only a few years ago corporations proudly boasted of the fact that they possessed a conscience, some even going to the extent of possessing a soul, meaning thereby that they recognized that one of their primary duties and obligations was consideration for their employes.

"Large corporations cannot today make any such claim. While this attainment does not apply to all, as there are some corporations that have not lost their conscience, it does apply to those who are engaged in the cutting of wage levels, the effect of which unless stopped will mean the destruction of our standard of living.

DEMANDS REFORM

"Mr. Hearst sets forth in his editorial one of the main causes for wage cuts—the determination to pay dividends by many corporations that have inflated their stock by expanding beyond proper limits when business was good and by declaring stock dividends in prosperous years, and upon which they intend to try to pay dividends during periods of adversity.

"The machine era has brought about great social changes, as a result of which we are justified in considering ways and means of controlling or limiting the unrestricted amassing of wealth. The tremendous concentration of wealth in the hands of a few has reached the extent where it should not be permitted to continue, if we are to preserve the individualistic state of civilization upon which the principles of our government are predicated.

DANGER APPARENT

"There are some of us in this country who see the danger and intend to combat this condition. Capital itself ought to see the danger and willingly co-operate. I believe in individual initiative, but I do not feel that it is right for less than two per cent of the people of any nation to own or control at least 70 per cent of the wealth. It is amusing and pathetic to read of industrial leaders' statement that wage cuts will more quickly restore prosperity.

"Mr. Hearst's editorial answers that completely. In speaking as he has, William Randolph Hearst again displays courage and shows that he places the welfare of his country above every other material consideration."

RED DANGER CITED

Congressman William P. Connery, Jr., of Lynn:

"I do not want to appear as a radical or a Red. I am just as conservative as a man can be, but the outrageous wage-cutting by the big corporations of this country is certainly driving people into Communism. Before Mr. Hearst's remarkable editorial appeared I had been preaching that the large corporations of America should stop taking advantage of the troubled people in this time of depression.

"The most conservative of men, clear-headed, and with jobs and sound affiliations, are turning to radical views. So, in view of that, what must be running through the minds of millions of unemployed? The people of the United States are known to be the most docile and patient on the face of the earth, but such outrages as the current wage slashing are leading them to a position where they are beginning to turn. Mr. Hearst certainly put his finger on one of the greatest outrages the country has ever undergone."

OLD LANGUAGES LOSE APPEAL

The ancient languages are gradually taking a back seat at Tufts and Jackson Colleges. This is proved by the fact that only 16 of the 157 freshmen in the School of Liberal Arts are candidates for the degree of Bachelor of Arts. The college requires all candidates for the degree of A. B. to take a certain number of hours in the ancient languages.

The dead languages are more popular with the women, for 51 of the 77 freshmen are taking either Latin or Greek.

Pedagogy is the most popular profession, more than half of the students planning to become teachers upon graduation.

Massachusetts leads with the greatest number of incoming students. Out of state students come from New Jersey, Maine, New Hampshire, New York, Vermont, Nova Scotia, Rhode Island, Trinidad, California, Cuba, Porto Rico and Venezuela.

Dr. Shelton Cleared of Girl's Charges

Alexandria, Va., Sept. 25 (US)—The Rev. Dr. William A. Shelton, pastor of the fashionable Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in Washington, late yesterday was unanimously exonerated of moral charges brought against him by Miss Carrie Williams, his former secretary. The verdict was returned following a three-day trial.

MISS ELIZABETH ROBINSON SWIFT MAKES DEBUT AT TEA TODAY

BEACON HILL

—by—

Betty Alden

IF YOU KNEW, GENTLE READERS, THE TROUBLE we are having with this column this evening, the brain-waves which are dashing against the indelible only to dissolve into nothingness, you would just skip it and pass on to the next page.

MISS MARY COWLES

* * *

Someone called us on the telephone a few moments ago and made the unkind inference that we say nothing so subtly that he spends hours trying to solve our little mysteries—or maybe he meant that we say much so vaguely that our real meanings sometimes escape him—this is also true of editors.

* * *

Another dear reader writes: Your report of my engagement greatly exaggerated and you ought not to encourage false hopes. I shall seldom if ever marry. This was not Bill Shearer.

* * *

We recently joined the Girl Scouts, or was it the Salvation Army. Anyhow here are a few of the merit badges to which we fear we are entitled: Tenderfoot, for tiptoeing among kings without losing the common touch; knot-tieing, and may we be there at the unravelling; motorist, refer to Officer Clancy at Winthrop sq.; pathfinder, for striving to keep the "small and earlies" from dying of neglect; economist—sorry, we didn't mean to include that; photographer, we do ALL the work, Simmy and Gus only press the buttons; bugler, and are we good at blowing our own horn; zoologist, we can enter the city room now without our knees skidding. No, I can't write poetry.

* * *

Hospitality of the First Rank

WE HAVE REACHED A CERTAIN AGE, STILL TUGGING at the uncertainties of life. There are three ages of woman: Romance, gardens and antiques. Ours is simply a case of arrested development. If we had only been a little surer of our birthdays we would have joined the Quota Club at the Crane and Kettle—or was it the Speckled Hen—last evening when they united at their first fall dinner. We feel sure we were right in the first instance, the Crane and Kettle, which is a charming guest house on Edmunds rd., Framingham, presided over by none other than Selma Bowditch (Mrs. James Savage Stone), one of THE Bowditches.

* * *

AND DOES A BOWDITCH know her antiques? We will try and describe the place in words of one syllable. It was built in 1685 and strikingly resembles an English country house in fine weather—if it rains you stay at home. Guests are served in a garden set off with larkspur and Oriental pottery—and under no condition will the advertiser's name be given—and so quiet that the little rippling brook seems almost noisy, not quite; so quiet, anyway, that one can actually enjoy the splashing of the goldfish in the fountain—if that is the kind of thing you enjoy—which is part of the rock garden of indigestible plants.

* * *

SELMA BOWDITCH SERVES luncheon, afternoon tea, an attractive supper or an elaborate dinner—note the delicate shades of difference.

* * *

THE "CRANE AND KETTLE" hospitality is expected to particularly appeal this coming season to those who wish to go out of town for Thanksgiving—love belongs to the happy—and participate in winter sports. For nice prose—it is only rarely that one can drop in, as paying guest, even Henry Ford wouldn't give you a Thanksgiving dinner for your old Model T, at a home which has a great, hospitable living room overflowing with—Sh! books and magazines and flanked by a huge open fireplace. What a place! The Crane and Kettle—you should know the name by this time—is easly reached by a left turn (as one goes out from Boston) off the Post road, just above South Sudbury Village. Page Mr. Longfellow.

* * *

IF ALL OF THE BOSTON and Salem Bowditches should decide THEY wished to carve the fatted turkey out of town, there would be no room for thee and me. THE Bowditches are F. F. and L. F. Good luck should therefore wait upon the C. & K.—and you supply the chip shots.

* * *

NOW FOR A BRIEF WORD about one of our celebrities of the slope: Miss Mary Cowles, sister of the circus rider, is leaving soon for Germany where she will study Munich—that doesn't sound exactly as she told it, but the end of this page is in sight and so good morning!

Miss Seabury to Make Bow

Tomorrow one of the 150 odd debutantes makes her bow to society. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Seabury will be hosts at a tea dance from 4 to 7 in honor of their daughter, Martha. They will receive a number of friends, many of them debutantes, and their mammas, besides an older crowd.

Miss Ruth Blake, who came out last year, will direct the group of pourers. She is the daughter of the Benjamin S. Blakes, of Weston, where the Seaburys also make their home, on the Boston Post rd.

Serving for Miss Seabury will be the Misses Edith Seabury, younger sister of Miss Martha, and a subdeb, Charlotte Paine, Mary Loring, Elizabeth Swift (Concord), Dorothy Stone, at whose tea last week Miss Seabury did the same, Hope Hubbard, Julia Jenkins, Mary Jane Bigelow, Elizabeth Locke, and Eliza Bowditch.

Miss Seabury was graduated from the Dobbs school in Tarrytown, N. Y., last year, and with her family has been at their summer home in Marion on the Cape, since then.

Masefield Will Give Lecture

London, Sept. 25 (US)—John Masefield, new English poet laureate, threatens to earn his annual, which is the equivalent of a "butt of mead," by giving a lecture on poetry.

Hitherto all poet laureates after their appointments have lapsed into absolute silence, but Masefield, who was appointed by Ramsey MacDonald, has decided that his views on poetry shall be heard and he will give a lecture to 1500 poetry lovers.

Masefield says the English people have formed more definite ideas of their own on the subject of poetry than Americans.

FALL BRIDE AND TWO OF HER ATTENDANTS

MRS. HOPKINS MISS WAMBOLT MISS CREIGHTON

New Shades in Latest Modes

By MARY HACKER

London, Sept. 25 (US)—Paris dress designers may dictate the length of the dress, but a group of scientists in London, known as the British color council, has the last word where colors are concerned.

For weeks past members of the council, working in conjunction with dyers' chemists, have been preparing lists of the latest hues.

One of the most popular shades for frocks promises to be the kingfisher blue, while other enchanting blues will be lapis lazuli, hyacinth, blue lavender and snow shadow. New mauve shades will include parma violet, canterbury bell and lilac.

The most favored greens are to be billiard green, Lincoln green, and greensward. Then there are smoke pearl, dusk and pewter as well as new glaring reds such as tiger lily and golden glow. Newly created browns will be known as new taupe, heron-feather, romany and mayfair brown.

The council has a name for every new shade and a woman will no longer be compelled to describe the color of her new dresses as something between a grey and a green.

Evelyn Pitman Bride of Russell South

Miss Evelyn Beryl Pitman, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. F. A. Pitman, of 683 Main st., and Russell Brooks South, son of Mrs. Charles J. South, both of Malden, were married last night at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. Seth Rogers Brooks, of the First Universalist church, of Malden.

Whitinsville Home Scene of Fete

Miss Elizabeth Robinson Swift, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Kent Swift of Glasmeet, Whitinsville, makes her debut this afternoon, at a tea given in her honor by her parents at their home.

As a matter of fact the tea is only a third of the entertainment to be given, as the group of pourers and a few others, with escorts, of course, have been invited to go on to a dinner that Mr. and Mrs. Sydney R. Mason, also of Whitinsville are giving in the debutante's honor. There are to be about 50 included in this affair, after which they all are to return to the Swifts again for a dance.

Girls from several cities are included in the group of pourers, classmates of Miss Swift's at Miss Hall's school. They are the Misses Priscilla Mason, daughter of the dinner hosts; Sophie Whitin, also of Whitinsville, a debutante of last year; Nancy Clare deS. Verdi, who is making her home with her grandmother, Mrs. Chester Lasell, this winter in Whitinsville; Jane Pafford of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Louise Russell of Boston; Anne Stevens of Grosse Point, Mich.; Edith Pardee of Hazelton, Pa.; Mary Campbell of East Norwich, L. I., and Elizabeth Walton of Wakefield.

The ushers for the dance who will also be present at the dinner, include the Messrs. Murray W. Keeler, who heads the group, and Martin Keeler, both of Whitinsville; Paul Whitin, brother of Miss Sophie; Oliver S. Chute and Henry D. Russell of Boston; Eben Draper and Austen Osgood of Hopedale; John W. Curtis, John Porter, George S. Barton, Jr., George Bullock and Harlan T. Pierpont, Jr., all of Worcester.

And after all this excitement we find that this much feted deb is going to college when "the tumult and the shouting" has died down, to start on a studious career.. Smith's the place.

Golf Stars to Wed Soon

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

New York, Sept. 25 (US)—From New Britain, Conn., come tidings of the betrothal of Marian Bennett, national golf star, and Eugene Vanderpool Homans, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sheppard Homans of this city and Englewood, N. J.

A formal announcement of the engagement was made yesterday by Marian's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence F. Bennett of New Britain.

Mr. Homans who is a graduate of the Choate school and who later attended Princeton University, is a brother of Loraine E. Homans and Mary T. Homans.

Like his future bride he has won honors on the golf course and was runner-up to Bobby Jones in the national amateur tournament in 1930. Mr. Homans now is engaged in the banking business in this city.

New Changes in Shoe Styles

By ANN ARDEN

Watch the lines of the new shoes They are changing gradually just as the other parts of the costuming are changing.

To begin with, heels are just a trifle lower. They don't send us up in the air with quite such an air of abandon as has been their wont.

Most of the shoes are trimmed—not much, mind you, but just enough of the subtly applied decoration to give the shoe some interest in itself. Even those who have decried trimmed shoes are falling for some of this new type of decoration.

Shoes are following hats by being interesting on the sides. That is a side view of almost any of the new dress shoes shows trimming over the vamp, over the side of the toe, along the binding at the side or merely stuck in as a sort of applique insert. The newest tendency is to move all decoration to the side, which is a complement to our side trimmed, tip-tilt hats. The beautifully moulded black suede shoe pictured, has its one side treatment stressed by cut out section, outlined in black patent leather narrowly edged in white. This trimming continues about the top, and ends in double twist, small strap and button.

The oxford is the perfect walking shoe, and is smartest in two leathers. The model pictured is of brown suede and brown kid, the trimming edges gracefully curved, and lightly perforated. Narrow strips of bronze simulate lacing each side front. Because of the utterly different feeling of our clothes, even the tailored oxford has gone feminine.

On This Page: Writers With Something to Say, Who Know How to Say It

True to Type
CONTROL BY EXPERTS NEW PHASE OF LIFE
By Gilbert Seldes

Gilbert Seldes

THE BRITISH HAVE the consolation of knowing, today, that what has happened to them has the approval of the experts. Like ourselves, they probably do not know exactly what the causes and consequences of abandoning the gold standard really are; they feel that a disaster has come upon them; and the experts say that it was predictable, inevitable and justifiable. That is what experts are for. And in finance, we are all ruled by experts—by professional men who sometimes take the advice of technicians.

You do not become a professional until you begin to juggle hundreds of millions of dollars—so I cannot qualify. With some difficulty I can understand the clearer explanation of what has happened. I know that when a hundred million is withdrawn from the Bank of England in one day it is the equivalent of a run; but I know that no line has been formed outside the Bank of Theadneedle st. Something complicated and obscure has occurred elsewhere. Dimly aware of this, I put it down to "international finance"—and again fall into the hands of the professionals.

Mysterious Powers

The day following the first announcement of the break, I talked with a number of educated and intelligent people, two of them specifically interested in finance, all of them equipped with the general American training—high school, college and business. None of them was at all clear about the significance of the news. All of them thought that we would be affected by it in our private lives, in our domestic economics. I gathered from them one disquieting thought—that a few generations ago the movements of international bankers were more easily understood and had a less vigorous effect upon people; and now, when their actions are instantly effective on all of us, fewer and fewer people understand what is going on. The problem has become too big for us; and more than a suspicion exists that it has become too big for the bankers themselves.

I recommend to seekers for light a few paragraphs written about a month ago by H. N. Brailsford and published in the September 16 issue of the New Republic. Mr. Brailsford is unreconciled to the "betrayal" of the Labor party by MacDonald; he says, roundly, that the previous crisis in England, solved by the formation of a national government, which has now virtually failed, was not brought about by the dole. His explanatiton has the great virtue of being clear; it may be partial in both senses of the word, but it recounts facts most of us can understand.

* * *

Lent Money Not Theirs

He says, briefly, that British financiers had lent half a billion dollars to Germany and Austria, and that this half billion wasn't theirs to lend; it was not British money. What they did "was to borrow from France at 3 per cent, and to lend to Germany at 6 or 8 per cent. Correct persons call this transaction . . . magnanimity to a fallen foe. Presently the French began to see a vision; they saw the banks of Vienna, Berlin and London as Alpine climbers tied together by a rope—two had tumbled, must they not drag the other down? Accordingly, the French in their prudence withdrew their deposits from London; there was a "run on the bank."

Mr. Brailsford has been for years a supremely fine journalist; he can reduce complex situations to simple terms. His point in the article is that the British working man has been sacrificed to save the financier; he may be wrong. But he was not wrong in his conclusion. It was that "the bankers will continue to borrow at 3 and lend at 8." He missed only one little point—the possibility that no one will lend to the bankers even at 3. Although he is not ignorant, he is, like us, helpless.

Fashion Note

French dressmakers forecast bustles and puffed sleeves and plumper figures.
—News Item.

Now that fashion decrees they should cover their knees
And sport a diminutive hat,
The ladies are told they'll be sweet to behold
If they'll only start in and grow fat.

For dames who scorn bustle with hoopskirt and bustle
Are scheduled to walk on Broadway
And the flapper of girth in a costume by Worth
Will be easily Queen of the May.

They looked, oh, so sweet (if not quite petite)
In the days of the buggy and pair
With their simpering smile and their saccharine guile
And a rose peeping out of their hair.

But we leave it to you, just what would they do
If they ran for a subway express,
Or attempted to scram in a taxicab jam
Without losing most of their dress?

So we meekly suggest, if the subject is pressed,
That the present day girl is O. K.,
And that ruffles and weight are a bit out of date,
—Percy Shaw.

INTERLUDE

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

(Reprinted by request)

The days grow shorter, the nights grow longer
The headstones thicken along the way;
And life growes sadder, but love grows stronger
For those who walk with us, day by day.
The tear comes quicker, the laugh comes slower,
The courage is lesser, to do and dare;
And the tide of joy in the heart runs lower,
And seldom covers the reefs of care.
But all true things in the world seem truer,
And the better things of the earth seem best;
And friends are dearer as friends are fewer,
And love is all as our sun dips West.
Then let us clasp hands as we walk together,
And let us speak softly, in love's sweet tone;
For no man knows, on the morrow, whether
We two pass by, or but one alone.

"It's a charming dress on you, madam—makes you look so absolutely helpless."

New Mystery
By The Reader

UNDER THE PEN-NAME of Louis Cornell, the author of "Poison Case Number Ten" (Brentano's), is re-introduced to the reading public as a writer of mystery stories.

As a matter of fact, he is well known under other names as a writer of mysteries, plays, motion picture scenarios, and other books on special subjects.

As a young man living in France he met the head of the Paris Surete and became intensely interested in modern methods of crime detection. His absorption in this hobby led him to join the New York police force, in which he did brilliant work as a detective.

Since returning to private life he has written a number of exhaustive monographs on lethal poisons, venoms, narcotics, special criminology and recidivation. He is also the owner of what is probably the largest and most unique library of books in America on legerdemain, Oriental jugglery and the "black arts."

* * *

Robert E. Sherwood has just seen his first novel, "The Virtuous Knight," published by Scribners; the motion picture of his play, "Waterloo Bridge," open on Broadway; and rehearsals begin for the Theater Guild production of his forthcoming play, "Reunion in Vienna," in which Lynn Fontanne, Alfred Lunt, Helen Wesley, Henry Travers and other Guild actors will appear.

It might seem that Mr. Sherwood would spend the autumn reading the reviews, which he probably would if he read them, which he doesn't. He writes them instead, and each month does the lead reviews in Scribner's Magazine's book review section.

The strange case of Reynolds Forsbrey, who spent 19 years in jails—and was recaptured five times at his sweetheart's home, is the basis of Joseph Van Raalte's "The Walls Are High" (Vanguard, $2). Warden Lawes of Sing Sing made on it the comment:

"You have caught something of the divine in the heart of a thief."

Forsbrey's troubles began when he held up a jewelry shop to commandeer a wedding ring, and the pistol went off.

Czerny-body Here Heard Mischa?

Scrape away
Night and day,
Little fiddler-boy next door,
With all zest
Though my rest
Is quite broken by your chore.

Draw the bow
To and fro—
What care you my sleep has flown?
Sweep the strings
Till there springs
From the gut the singing tone.

I won't call
Through the wall,
For who knows—despite all my fits—
You, wee lad,
Now so bad,
May evolve into a Heifetz.
Julian Lewis.

Art

From the French of Theophile Gautier

All things return to dust
Save Beauty fashioned well;
The bust
Outlasts the citadel.

Oft doth the ploughman's heel,
Reveal
A Caesar or a god!

The gods, too, died, alas!
But deathless and more strong
Than brass

Age Rules the World
By Bertrand Russell

IT IS A COMMONPLACE that the young are influenced by imagination and reasoning, while the old are guided by experience. When I was young I had a remarkable illustration of this fact.

I had walked from the old-world village of Clovelly, in Devonshire, to a cape called Hartland Point, from which I could see Lundy Island at the mouth of the Bristol Channel. I got into conversation with a coast guardsman, who told me the distance to Clovelly was eight miles, and the Lundy Island 10 miles. "And how far is it from Clovelly to Lundy Island?" I asked. The answer was 22 miles.

At this I burst out into argument that two sides of a triangle are always greater than the third side, that if one went by way of Hartland Point the distance would only be 18 miles. The coast guardsman was quite unmoved.

"All I can say," he replied, "is that I was speaking with Captain Jones the other day, and he said, 'I've known this coast, man and boy, for 30 years, and I make it 22 miles'." Before the man-and-boy argument geometry had to retire abashed.

* * *

Age Rules Everywhere

This story has a moral. The government of the world, moral as well as political, is almost wholly in the hands of the old, who have known the world, "man and boy," not merely for 30 years, but for 50, 60 or 70. All these men have learnt from experience to believe what they already believed before they had experience, for most people learn nothing from experience except confirmation of their prejudices. To learn anything genuinely from experience requires a kind of open mindedness which is the essence of the scientific temper, though many men of science are somewhat lacking in it.

The world is very largely what we make it. Our theories mould the world, and may become true by being believed. In a different society, where other beliefs prevail, the world will seem quite different. Therefore, even if your prejudices are confirmed by your experience, it may be that a different experience would have confirmed a quite different set of prejudices. Schopenhauer died of taking a bath, having never tried one 'til of an advanced age. This confirmed his friends' prejudices.

* * *

Europe Doesn't Learn

The chief superiority of America to western Europe is that the "man-and-boy" type of argument has less force than in more traditional countries. Eastern Europe and northern Asia have lately become untraditional—with what result it is as yet difficult to judge. But western Europe goes on in the old way in a new world, and is perishing from the intensity of its belief in the value of experience.

This applies to business methods, politics, education, methods of building houses—indeed, to almost everything except scientific theory, in which, oddly enough, western Europe remains supreme. But scientific theory is known only to a small aristocracy of intellect, and touches ordinary social life only through the technique to which it leads. And every new technique is hateful to traditionalists.

What Really Happens
(After W. B. Yeats)

From "In Parody and Dust Shot," by G. F. Bradby (Oxford University Press).

I will arise and go now, and go to Innisville,
And a small villa build there of reinforced concrete.
Two chimneys will I have there, a ledge by the window-sill,
And sit and look on a tree-lined street.

And I will have a car there, for cars are going cheap,
Popping when it starts in the morning with second-hand springs,
And a gramophone and records to sing my soul to sleep
With music full of jazz-like things.

I will arise and go now, for every holiday
I long for a little villa—or else a bungalow
A furlong from the golf links and near the King's highway,
Where all the crimson buses go.

Literary Tea

The hostess glances over to her table——
The canapes are going very fast!
The lion of the day is condescending
About the poet's verses—and her past.
The movie star is just a trifle weary,
The men, to her, seem thirstier than most.
The artist says, "Migosh, a deadly party!"
And never knows he's talking to his host.

Three people almost perish in the rush.
An editor drops in "for just a moment";
His light remarks fall on a breathless hush.
Somebody says, "My novel's nearly finished——"
Somebody says, "But think of what he paid!"
The hostess glances, swiftly, toward her table—
The canapes will never make the grade!
Margaret E. Sangster.

IMPORTANT NEWS:

for men who refuse to wear cheap clothes or pay fancy prices

$25 now buys the famous $40 MacKenzie Worsteds

And Bond is the only retailer in town who has them at $25!

It's time for action! Men want to see savings instead of reading about them. That's why we've concentrated on these nationally known fabrics. That's why we've shopped this city from stem to stern—and then established a price nobody has equalled. That's why the new Fall MacKenzie Worsteds are $25, with two trousers—at Bonds!

Men who have worn these grand worsteds know what real thoroughbreds they are. They stand up under all kinds of punishment, and hold a crease for a long time. They have a richness of weave and color found only in expensive woolens. And they tailor perfectly!

MacKenzie Worsteds have won a multitude of friends wherever they were shown at $40. They should enjoy a landslide of popularity at Bonds new low price of $25, with two trousers.

CARDINAL SETS OCT. 4 ASIDE FOR CHARITY

More than $400,000 was expended in relief for the poor of the archdiocese of Boston in the last year by organized Catholic charities under the direction of Cardinal O'Connell, according to the Pilot, official Catholic organ, today.

The expenditure was for food, clothing, fuel, rent and other material needs.

"The Catholic Church says little of what she does for the poor," the Pilot says. "The policy of His Eminence the Cardinal has always been to do the work in a quiet and unostentatious manner. In days, however, such as we are now experiencing it is well for our Catholic people to reflect that very substantial help is being given to our needy ones."

Outlay for board of children is not included in the summary. The Catholic Charitable Bureau is the largest child-placing agency in New England.

More than $250,000 has been spent by the St. Vincent de Paul society with virtually no overhead expense, for the members are voluntary workers, giving of their time, energy and interest without remuneration it is pointed out. The expenditures of the society were about four times what they were 12 years ago.

"Of course," the Pilot says, "private agencies cannot hope to meet the present crisis. This is a public problem and should be met with public funds."

Cardinal O'Connell has set aside Sunday, Oct. 4, for taking up the annual collection for Catholic charities. In a letter sent to all the pastors in the archdiocese, to be read at all masses, the Cardinal says:

"The outlook for the coming year is none too bright and the increasing number of calls for assistance, foretells a hard winter, when the resources of our charitable institutions will again be put to a severe test. The flame of Christian charity, which is the ripe fruit of faith, must burn brightly in the hearts of the faithful or else the call of those in distress shall remain unanswered."

Nineteen Killed in India Riot

Sprinagar, India, Sept. 25 (AP)—Nineteen persons were killed in this vicinity in an outbreak of communal rioting last night when Moslems attacked Hindu pickets.

Dad and Son Barred as 'Combination Auto Drivers'

Chambersburg, Pa., Sept. 25 (AP)—State highway police have disqualified a combination automobile driver. Elmer McQuait, who was blinded by an accident, operated the clutch, gear shift and accelerator of his car while his 10-year-old son sat on his lap, steered and directed operations.

Although they had no accidents, police opined it was too dangerous.

Hot Language, and in Parliament, Too

London, Sept. 25 (INS)—In Parliament today Tom Johnston, Laborite, charged the British Government reduced the unemployment dole "at the dictation of New York bankers."

"Tell them to go to hell!" shouted a Labor member, and the cry echoed through the Labor benches.

$25,000 WORTH OF BAD MEMORY

Chicago, Sept. 25 (AP)—Mrs. Isabelle Dreyfus, ex-Follies girl, of Chicago, has presented the police a $25,000 problem.

"I put $25,000 worth of jewelry in a leather box," she reported, "and started down town to lock it up in a safe deposit box.

"When I was passing a beauty shop I remembered that I wanted a facial. So I had one. Then it was too late to get into the vault and I hailed a cab and went home. It was after I got into my apartment that I suddenly realized I had left the jewels in the cab. Will you get them for me, please?"

Gen. Haskin Dead

New London, Ct., Sept. 25—Gen. William L. Haskin, retired, died here at the age of 90.

HINDENBURG TO GREET LAVAL

Berlin, Sept. 25 (AP)—The heads of the French Government will set foot on German soil for the first time in more than 60 years this week-end when Premier Laval and Foreign Minister Briand come to repay the visit of the German statesmen to Paris in July.

President Von Hindenburg will welcome them in the hope of permanently adjusting Franco-German relations, strained since the Franco-Prussian war.

The invitation of Prime Minister MacDonald to Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius to visit London last June started a series of jaunts from capital to capital. The English invitation permitted the French to invite the German statesmen to Paris without embarrassment and the latter to reciprocate by inviting the French to Berlin.

Always INSIST ON
NEW ENGLAND DRESSED~FRESH PORK

It Is Fully As Important To Insist On Fresh Pork . . . . As On Fresh Eggs

When you use eggs in your kitchen or on your table—you are confident that they are the freshest you can buy—that they have been delivered to you within a day or two of the time they are laid. You buy them that way because they are better, because NOTHING TAKES THE PLACE OF FRESHEST.

You will find that New England Dressed Fresh Pork offers the same natural freshness—you know it is delivered to your dealer within 24 hours after being cut from the choicest Corn Fed Porkers brought on alive from the Grain Belt, and dressed under U. S. Government Inspection. When you serve New England Dressed Fresh Pork—you and your family will Taste The Difference. Tender, sweet, pure, nutritious meat.

In Pork, as in Eggs, NOTHING TAKES THE PLACE OF FRESHEST.

"What makes her legs so straight and strong?"

[For one thing she gets extra sunshine vitamin-D by eating Bond Bread.]

CHOOSE the bread that builds strong bones

IT'S sunshine vitamin-D that makes straight strong bones and sound even teeth, aids proper growth and builds up resistance to colds and illness.

Until now, no table food ever contained a sufficient quantity of this vital element.

In many foods, there is plenty of all the other vitamins, EXCEPT sunshine vitamin-D.

Now there's a new way to get the additional sunshine vitamin-D you need. Eat Bond Bread. One or two slices a meal will give you all the extra amount you need.

No other bread contains sunshine vitamin-D. No other table food contains enough. Get delicious vitamin-D Bond Bread at your grocer's. It's the same, home-like loaf—with flavor and richness assured by stopping the dough-rising at the Flavor-Peak. It tastes the same. It costs the same. But no bread ever before brought such untold value.

OFFICIALLY APPROVED BY HIGHEST AUTHORITIES

EVERY claim made in this advertisement has been specifically checked and approved by recognized scientific authority. Bond Bread, analyzed and tested as to its sunshine vitamin-D content, has been granted the official seals of acceptance and approval of the following:

RADIOS MASKED QUARTET

Mystery Four Hides Identity

Hooded Singers Broadcast Tonight

By N. F. T.

Shrouded in robes of mysticism four vocalists who alighted from a train at Boston's downtown terminal for steam cars [illegible] have the 8.15 spot [illegible] for them tonight on WBZ.

• • •

[illegible] why all the secrecy is not [illegible] explained, but it is [illegible] they are possessors of [illegible] radio voices. Ear cuppers are therefore invited to listen and [illegible] submitting their right names [illegible] sponsor [illegible] exploiting them, consequently the entire [illegible] one of those high-[illegible] promotion stunts to arouse listener interest. One can hardly [illegible] plan, providing they make good.

• • •

PRIVATE INVESTIGATION

George Mulvey is the fellow to blame, or at least he's the chap working out the mysterious details. As a general rule such methods of ushering features into the air channels provoke little more than a half-hearted smile hereabouts. Yet George is so persistently insistent about these particular warblers being [illegible] that your Uncle N. F. T. is going to look in on the [illegible] tonight. If it is possible to get one peek under [illegible] a pledge [illegible] in [illegible] short order. Their offering at 8.15 is a program of male quartet harmony.

• • •

New Expert Truss Fitting Service Here

If you wear a truss—read this announcement carefully. We have chosen to represent exclusively in Boston and vicinity the world known Akron Sponge Rubber Pad Trusses, and have added to the facilities of our Truss Fitting Department.

To acquaint you with this finer New Expert Truss Fitting Service a special two week Demonstration begins next Monday, Sept. 28th, personally handled by Tom L. Collins, famous Factory Expert of The Akron Truss Company, assisted by our own Trained Staff Fitter.

If you believe wearing a truss must always be painful or if you are resigned to the idea that no truss can improve your condition, you owe it to yourself to visit us during this demonstration. Bad rupture cases are especially invited. Mr. Collins has aided thousands of ruptured persons. In addition to the regular Akron Truss line, he will show for the first time in Boston, and demonstrate free, the wonderful New Akron Triple Guard Truss, the latest development of 25 years' manufacturing experience. It is a revelation in truss comfort and security. Remember, September 28 opens this demonstration. Consult Mr. Collins about your rupture and truss. Private fitting rooms.

G.O.P. LAUNCHES N. E. DRIVE AT SPRINGFIELD

West Springfield, Sept. 25—With prominent national speakers scheduled to appear, the first gun in the campaign to line the New England States for Herbert Hoover in 1932 will be fired today at the all New England G. O. P. rally in the Coliseum on the grounds of the Eastern States exposition.

The first of the speakers, Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, chairman of the Republican national committee, arrived in Springfield [illegible] direct from his home in Yellow Springs.

The other speakers of note are Congressman Frank Crowther of Schenectady, N. Y., reputed to be one of the outstanding orators in Congress; Mrs. Ellis A. Yost of Huntington, West Virginia, director of the women's division of the Republican national committee, and Robert H. Lucas of Kentucky, executive director of the Republican national committee.

Amos L. Taylor, chairman of the Massachusetts committee, will preside. Music is to be furnished by the famous Governor's Foot Guard Band of Connecticut, which previous to the speaking will give a concert.

Delegations from all parts of New England to the rally were arriving early by special coaches on trains and by automobile, bent for the most part on getting in as much time as possible looking over the trade, [illegible] and agricultural exhibits at the fair.

1000 Saloons Open in Berlin in a Year, and 1000 Close!

Berlin, Sept. 25 (INS)—Berlin is a city of saloons, and, as regards beer consumption, ranks second only to Munich.

Although beer consumption has decreased 24 per cent a year, new saloons are opened at the rate of 1000 a year. In some districts the ratio is one saloon to [illegible] inhabitants.

In contrast to the increasing number of saloons, beer consumption is declining on account of the depression, [illegible] and the sobering influence of the athletic movement.

New York, Sept. 25 (AP)—The annual fall parade of ambitious young men to New York is on.

They are arriving at the rate of 2500 a day, young men between the ages of 20 and 35, and today Walter T. Diack, general secretary of the New York City Y. M. C. A., sent out word to Y. M. C. A.'s around the country to urge them to stay at home.

"Several of our branches are swamped by ambitious youths who have come to the metropolis to make their fortunes," he said.

VOICE FROM THE WEST OFFERS A CURE FOR SOME MORE ILLS

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

ROBERT E ROGERS

YESTERDAY AFTERNOON I HEARD the Voice of the West. It was an interesting experience. By accident I tuned into a broadcast of a state fair somewhere out in Newton, Ia., and presently I was listening to "Alfalfa Bill," Governor William H. Murray of Oklahoma, preaching the gospel to the people of the neighboring State of Iowa.

I say the voice of the West. That is what it sounded like. All around and above him were the unsuppressed noises of a big country fair. There was laughter and whistling and calling, occasional strains of music, that carried with [illegible] mental pictures of a hot day, a crowded fairgrounds, and thousands milling noisily and good-humoredly around the big tent where, undoubtedly, "Alfalfa Bill" was shouting himself hoarse to all the folk within the range of his voice.

I visualized it, in spite of myself, as one of those Western fairs described by George Ade, too big a proposition for the Fool Killer to tackle on a hot day.

* * *

Bill Says a Mouthful

The off-stage noises were not quite as convincing as they would have been if they had been rehearsed in the studio, but they served. Against their shrill and incessant obligato I heard what I can only describe as a raw-boned voice. It was the voice of a lean, rangy man, with a drooping moustache, getting his oratorical effects by main strength, without subtlety and with tremendous wear and tear on his throat.

Right then and there I made up my mind that he was no likely possibility as the inheritor of the crown of Bryan and La Follette. "Alfalfa Bill" is no orator, as Brutus was. Even before a friendly audience he can't manage his climaxes to get more than hesitant applause. There is no silver clarion in his voice. His oratory had the heavy and billowing rise and fall of the old-time Methodist preacher, and when he spoke, as he occasionally did, of Satan, the old adversary himself, quite as if he were a personal antagonist very familiar to the good people of Oklahoma and Iowa, I thought for a moment that I was listening to an old-fashioned come-outer in camp-meeting.

His pronunciation was not exaggerated, but it was unmistakable for all that. He said, "Thah's some rivers thah, t'other side o' Oklahoma." He said, "The humaniteh of this countreh includes ditch-diggahs as well as bankahs."

He said, "Mah theoreh of tahxes is that evereh mahn should pay tahxes acco'din' to his ability to pay."

He sounded like a black Stetson and a string tie and a long stogie considerably chewed—if you know what I mean. His English was excellent, but he meandered in his argument. The whole thing sounded less pungent and natural than I should have expected from what I have read about the man. But he was on dress parade and he was talking generalities.

* * *

Jacksonian Not Jeffersonian

The generalities were exactly what the Middle West has been listening to from her anointed for the past 60 or 70 years. It was the old line of Jacksonian—not Jeffersonian!—Democracy, reduced to plainest terms and its lowest level. The American people have been voting for geography and lodges and churches, instead of for principles. There are too many cowards in Washington jumping when Wall Street cracked the whip. Satan and the Money Trust are almost interchangeable terms. Taxes should be levied according to ability to pay. Extraordinary wealth must pay for the extraordinary protection it needs. The invisible federal tax lies heavily on the poor man for everything he buys. The tariff benefits Wall Street and impoverishes the farmer. Reciprocity is juggled by the Interests to the farmer's disadvantage. Government is the servant of Monopoly. Tariff for revenue only, with reciprocity for the farmer and heavily graduated income taxes, will save the country.

One thought of the generations of political Moses, who have said these same things to the farmers of the West, with little effect in good times, but effectively and even dangerously when times are hard, crops are poor, money is tight and election is near. Out of the ideas of people like "Alfalfa Bill" have grown up parties, short-lived but able to keep the G. O. P. awake at nights worrying.

The farmers of the corn and wheat belt heard these same ideas from the Greenbackers and the Grangers of the '70s, from the Populists and the Free Silver enthusiasts of the '80s and early '90s, from the Bull Moosers and from the La Follette movement that picked up all the waifs and strays of these movements and tried, a decade ago, to weld them into a third party.

* * *

Gave Birth to Progress

Never have these ideas entirely succeeded, but they have h[illegible] an enormous influence on the political progress of the coun[illegible]. After all, it is the Western minority parties that we owe the federal regulation of public utilities, the income tax, the direct primary, the initiative and referendum, and, most striking, all the machinery of legislation intended to improve the farmer's condition.

The West never obtained exactly what it wanted. But it has done pretty well. It lost on the greenback issue and free silver—yet today it hears the old argument for bimetallism revived in startling form. It never succeeded in defeating the high tariff, but it has the satisfaction of seeing the tariff everywhere criticised, more seriously than ever before. Its attempts to control business by legislation were hamstrung—but business itself now admits the need of control. It did get Prohibition, with certain modifications which probably it did not foresee. And it still believes it can upset the law of supply and demand in the oil field.

"Alfalfa Bill" is more than an individual. He is a symbol, the latest of a long line, of the West's determination to establish a new heaven and a new earth, to outlaw Wall Street and all its works, and to bring about the millenium according to specifications drafted in Kansas and Oklahoma and Iowa. All that is needed is a prophet or two. Fortunately for the West, there is never any lack of prophets.

DAVIDSON HELD ON THREAT CHARGE

Beauty Shop Proprietor in Check Case Blames Plight on Brookline Man

Charged with maliciously threatening Leona B. Quigley, 42, Waltham beauty shop proprietor, whom he accused July 10 of forging her landlord's indorsement to five checks, Roscoe L. Davidson, 65, wealthy real estate operator of Brookline, was arrested yesterday.

The Quigley woman alleged the checks were a gift from Davidson and that the landlord's name was used as a blind so that Davidson's wife would not become suspicious.

DAVIDSON ARRAIGNED

Arraigned before Judge Gibbs in [illegible] criminal court at East Cambridge on a secret indictment from the Middlesex grand jury, Davidson denied that he maliciously threatened to accuse the woman of the crime of uttering forged instruments with intent thereby to compel her to do an act against her will.

He was allowed to go on his own recognizance pending arrangements for bail by his counsel, James Graham of Boston.

On July 15 the Quigley woman, then living on Follen st., Boston, was [illegible] held in $2000 for the [illegible] jury after Judge Cunniff of Waltham found probable cause for holding her in $400 on each of five counts brought against her in Newton court by Davidson.

CHARGES "BLIND"

Davidson alleged that five checks ranging from $60 to $150 were given to her to turn over to her landlord in payment of a mortgage, and that she forged the name of her landlord J. H. McDermott. She then cashed the checks, he [illegible].

She testified that the checks were given her by Davidson and that McDermott's name was used as a blind so that Davidson's wife would not become suspicious. She [illegible] held for the September session.

Ernst and Pals See Profiteer Menaced

What Has Gone Before

Ernst, who enlisted as a schoolboy, tells the story of a group of war comrades who march home when peace is made. Arriving at their home city Ernest and Lieutenant Ludwig Breyer are attacked by revolutionaries and rescued by the giant Willy Homeyer. Ernst's homecoming is disappointing. His family seem to him strangers. He is homesick though at home. He seeks his comrade, Albert Trosske, and together the two sally forth to look up others of the group. At Willy's house the returned soldier is in disgrace for killing a neighbor's pedigreed rooster for supper. The soldiers leave and find an agitated mob in the square. A procession forms and, without knowing where they are going, the soldiers fall in.

Now Go on With the Story

But already, after only a few hundred yards, the procession stops. It has halted in front of the mayor's house. Some workers rattle at the outer door. All remain quiet; but the pale face of a woman is seen a moment behind the shut windows. The rattling increases; a stone is thrown at the window. A second follows. Splintered glass falls clashing into the front garden.

Then the Mayor shows himself on the balcony of the first floor. He is greeted with shouts. He tries to [illegible] but none will hear him.

"Come out! Come with us!" cries somebody.

The girls yesterday admitted before the pardons board that a party in a Woburn shack last February when the alleged attacks took place had been "[illegible]." Police Chief [illegible] F. McCauley of Woburn was present at the hearing.

"NOT COERCED"

The girls told [illegible] board of pardons that their [illegible] had been bothering them [illegible] finally [illegible] original [illegible] said the [illegible] exhibited [illegible] ripped getting into an [illegible] declared [illegible] that they had not been coerced into changing their [illegible]

During the hearing Chief McAuley went to East Cambridge and obtained warrants for the arrest of the girls on [illegible] charge. They were [illegible] at the conclusion of the hearing [illegible] and created a scene when they were placed under arrest and were half carried to a waiting police car to East Cambridge.

MELODY LEADS PARADE OF GREENBACKS

After 12 years of "plugging," Al Frazzini of North Bennett st., North End, has convinced music publishers that he has a song that will be a hit. Frazzini is shown with his wife and three children, whose encouragement has been a big factor in his success.

SONG WRITER'S PATIENCE WINS

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

The things that come to people who wait have at last come to Al Frazzini of the North End after 12 long years of patience.

For Al has [illegible] his tuneful and sentimental melody "Love Kiss Me Goodnight." And now the North End is rejoicing with Al's wife and three youngsters in his good fortune.

Patience has brought into Frazzini's North End abode greenbacks [illegible] hard cash. And now his children [illegible] there is a Santa Claus and [illegible] a good Samaritan.

[illegible] Al carried [illegible] from song publisher to song publisher [illegible] "Love Kiss Me Goodnight." But not one music house could visualize its possibilities [illegible] feel its tonal sentiment.

Then on recent day Al met Mickie Alpert, master of ceremonies of the Scandals.

The melody caught the leader of the Westminster's festivities. He was [illegible] on it as a hit number and the song through Mickie's instrument was immediately accepted by one of the best known publishing [illegible] Alpert [illegible] to [illegible]

Workman Injured

Joseph Quartedi, 36, of 90 Hale st., North End, suffered a fracture of the right arm when a piece of steel struck him while he was working on Clarkson st., Dorchester.

BOY SPEEDER, 16 TRAPPED

A chase of more than a mile resulted last night in the capture of a 16-year-old youth after the district around the Charlestown "loop" was thrown into terror by a racing automobile and the noise of a policeman's gun.

Motorcycle Officer Charles E. Tighe was on Bunker Hill st. when he heard the usual warning signal, an automobile shrieking a steady warning behind him.

He looked over his shoulder, saw a car far up the street advancing toward him at great speed. He did not [illegible] but turned his own machine and drove ahead of [illegible]

He kept to the [illegible] route [illegible] the speeders [illegible] invariably [illegible]

Finally after they had swung through S[illegible] sq. and another patrolman had fired a shot at the car, Tighe allowed the stolen car to pass him.

Within a block the car was abandoned and Tighe, leaving his motorcycle, gave chase and after a short run arrested Daniel Smith, 16, of Elm st., Charlestown, alleged to have been one of the occupants of the car.

Driver Appeals Two Fines in Waltham

Fred E. Bowes of Sagamore st., Dorchester, was fined $75 in Waltham Court on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor in Weston. He was also fined $5 for drunkenness.

DINERS ROUTED IN $1000 FIRE

Four buildings in Bennington st., East Boston, [illegible] prey to flames early today with damage of $1000. Lunch room patrons in one building fled to the street.

The fire of undetermined origin, started in the basement of a one-story brick building at 1016 Bennington st., worked up into the meat market of George [illegible] and into the [illegible] shop of [illegible] at No. 1018.

On the other side the flames ate through into the [illegible] and [illegible]

NEW HIGH-SPEED SOAP

–does whiter washings with much less work and cost

● Now comes a joyous relief for overworked women. The greatest soap makers in the world bring you a new soap discovery, Oxydol, that will lighten all your washing work because of its gift of richer suds. For suds, as experts have discovered, are the secret of a soap's washing power.

Oxydol is supercharged (with pure rich soap) for 50% more suds than other soaps in granulated form—livelier suds that outwash and outlast all others!

Richer suds mean less work for you

Because its richer suds do more of the hard work for you, Oxydol speeds your work and saves your strength.

As you know from experience, weak old-type suds quickly fizzle away to watery thinness... that's why they leave clothes gray and streaky.

When you buy soap, consider how much suds you are getting for your money—for it's suds you're really buying.

If the suds fizzle away and fall back, the dirt falls also—back into your clothes. Rich Oxydol suds stand up—outlast all others—this is the real secret of Oxydol's success.

Now you can soak clothes snowy white

Oxydol likes hard water

The minute you put dirty clothes or greasy dishes into soft water you harden that water, remember that whenever you wash anything.

50% MORE SUDS

quicker, richer, longer-lasting suds—that's why OXYDOL saves washday labor, makes dishwashing easier!

Oxydol makes all water soft

Amazing for dishes

Oxydol fairly whisks away each speck of grease from even the dirtiest dishes or pots and pans. You can dry dishes without wiping, if you prefer, when Oxydol is used because its suds leave no trace of clinging film.

Oxydol is kind to hands

Your hands will tell you that Oxydol is safe for even your most delicate clothes.

For Oxydol is made from only the purest and finest of washing materials—as you would expect from the makers of Ivory Soap, who recommend it to you.

Mothers are enthusiastic about Oxydol for children's clothes and baby things—it leaves them softer, daintier, and whiter.

Ask your grocer today for the big-sized orange and blue package. Its rich longer-lived suds will save your strength and ease the hardest task of housekeeping. Try it once and you'll thank the day you learned its name. Procter & Gamble.

50% MORE SUDS MEANS 47% LESS WORK

GUARANTEE

If you do not find that Oxydol makes more and richer suds—that it soaks clothes gleaming white—that it makes hard water soft and works better in any water—just turn the package back to the store where you bought it and your money will be returned.

THREE BOYS TELL OF KIDNAPING IN MODERN 'FAGIN' CASE

WOBURN COURT HEARS STORY OF ROBBERY

Wilmington Man Arraigned on a Charge of Receiving Stolen Goods

A story of a kidnaping that climaxed a career of housebreaking, under the guidance of a modern "Fagin," was told by three 14-year-old boys who appeared as material witnesses in a Woburn court case today.

The boys are Richard Tuttle, a state ward living at the home of Mrs. Anne Morgan of Lowell st.; Lawrence Smith of the same address, and Paul Dunham, son of Mrs. William Hardy of Broadway, Wilmington.

They were summoned two weeks ago to testify against Neil Franklin, 35, of West st., Wilmington, who was arraigned today on charges of receiving stolen property.

IDENTIFY WEAPONS

In court the boys identified six guns and a saddle as loot which they had taken from houses and a barn in Wilmington, and which they had later seen in Franklin's possession. Young Dunham testified that Franklin bought some of the stolen property from them. Franklin was held for the grand jury in $1000.

Tuttle and Dunham disappeared Tuesday and were picked up by state police yesterday after a statewide search as they tramped with weary feet through Tewksbury on their way home.

Red marks on their wrists and ankles bore out the declaration that they had been tied up for nearly two days, police said.

BOY MISSING 3 WEEKS

Dunham told police he was kidnapped Tuesday on his way to school and forced to decoy Tuttle into the haunts of the kidnapers, who were in a blue sedan.

The boys were driven to a spot near Nashua, N. H., he said, and held captive in the woods until late Wednesday night, when they were released.

Police revealed that Francis Caswell, 18, another state ward who signed an affidavit implicating Franklin, has been missing three weeks.

KISS MAY LAST 30 SECONDS, MEMORY 30 YEARS

By HELEN ROWLAND

THERE ARE two kinds of fashionable suntan: the kind that peels off the nose—and the kind that comes off on a man's coat lapel.

• • •

A hero is a man who can look his wife in the eye, at breakfast, and tell her that he isn't coming home to dinner—instead of waiting until he gets to the office and telephoning her.

• • •

HELEN ROWLAND.

• • •

A "DREAM" is any new girl a man happens to meet, when the girl of the moment is beginning to look to him like a nightmare.

• • •

A kiss may last only [illegible]—but the memory of it, if [illegible] don't marry—and the consequences [illegible] do—may last for [illegible].

• • •

Nowadays the ultimate proof of a man's love is his willingness to refrain from flirting with any other girl, over your head, while he's holding you in his arms.

• • •

The main difference between a man's stenographer and his wife is just the difference between an interesting propinquity and a dutiful proximity.

• • •

When a man comes bearing gifts a woman always remembers "the Greek"—and beware [illegible] pects that any extra tenderness or [illegible] art means anything, except that he is more fascinating than usual.

• • •

Keep Things Away From Baby

By Dr. R. S. COPELAND.

IN YOUR childhood, it is probable you swallowed some object which should never have entered your mouth. This may have been a penny or a pin. Whatever it was, I am quite sure the incident aroused much excitement and alarm in your family.

Dr Copeland

Such accidents are of daily occurrence. [illegible] the accident is not [illegible] the child [illegible] the swallowed object and suffers no ill effects from the experience.

However, in many cases [illegible] a serious thing. It is really dangerous when the swallowed object lodges in the windpipe instead of entering the stomach.

These accidents can and should be avoided. Many a mother in dressing her infant or older child places safety pins and other objects in her mouth.

Children who see their mothers do this frequently get the absurd notion that that is where such things belong. On finding a pin or other small object it goes at once into the little mouth.

Another careless habit of adults as well as children is that of hasty eating and improper chewing of food. On Fridays, when fish is a popular dish, there is always a flow of patients to nearby clinics and emergency [illegible]. The doctors are busy removing fish bones from the throat.

This accident is a dangerous one and sometimes requires quite an extensive operation for removal of the bone. It can be prevented by the training of children in the importance of slow eating and careful chewing of all foods.

Answers to Health Queries

R. W. K. Q.—What should a girl of 16, 5 feet tall weigh? also a girl of 17, 5 feet tall?

A.—They should weigh respectively about 109 and 110 pounds.

2—Either may be responsible. It would be wise to have an examination, including an eye test.

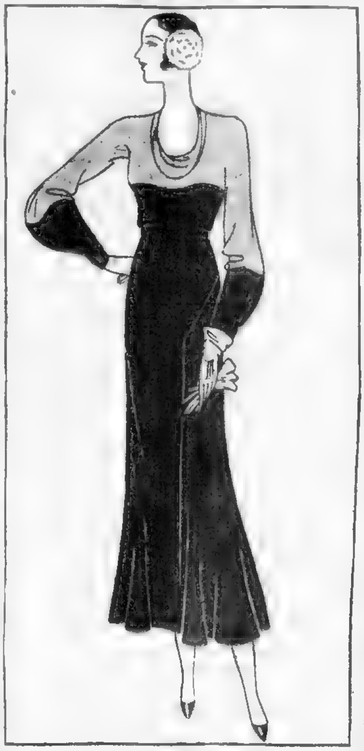
SKETCHED IN PARIS



Lanvin is showing an afternoon ensemble called "Satan," of which the dress is shown in this sketch. Light flame colored georgette makes the top of the bodice and the upper half of the melon sleeves. The remainder of the frock is of black marocain. The two fabrics are joined with a three-quarter inch fagot done with tiny bridges of black crepe. An extremely ample godet is set in at the left side of the skirt in a diagonal line, giving a circular ripple to the already flaring silhouette.

Plans for Week-End Visitors

By MARTHA LEE.

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

FRIENDS OR relatives coming for the week-end? Are you distracted thinking of all the extra work of preparing and serving the meals as well as entertaining?

Martha Lee

There's no denying that guests do mean work, but if they are the homey kind that will come out in the kitchen and help or [illegible] feet under the kitchen step-stool, and keep out of the way, they can be a joy. Especially if you sit down for 10 minutes and let me plan with you some balanced menus that may help. Remember that your guests have come to enjoy you and not the food, and don't plan to undertake more than you can manage easily.

Perhaps they are coming Friday night and going to leave Monday morning. For Friday dinner, I'd suggest clear soup, steak with stuffed baked tomatoes, baked potatoes, cauliflower [illegible], lettuce with thousand island dressing, ice box cake and coffee. For Saturday's breakfast orange juice, dry cereal with top milk, bacon and eggs, toast and coffee. For Saturday's luncheon jellied meat in a ring mold with fruit salad, corn muffins with jelly and a hot beverage. For Saturday's dinner, cream of corn soup with croutons, baked ham, mashed sweet potatoes with marshmallows, jellied vegetable salad, rolls, grape jelly, chocolate pudding and coffee. For Sunday's breakfast honeydew melon with lime slices, baked beans, creamed [illegible] coffee [illegible] cakes if [illegible].

For Sunday dinner, tomato [illegible] barbecued leg of lamb with pan browned potatoes, mint jelly, Kentucky wonder beans, grapefruit salad, rolls [illegible] ice cream sandwiches and coffee. For Sunday supper, cold sliced ham and lamb with parsley, tomato cups stuffed with diced cucumber and mayonnaise, white and whole wheat bread sandwiches [illegible] and [illegible] chocolate.

For the [illegible] breakfast on Monday [illegible] peaches, cereal with hot [illegible] sausages, coffee and [illegible].

Looking over [illegible], which of course you'll want to change to [illegible] I think you'll find [illegible] that can be prepared ahead.

Have a good time—and look forward to the return invitation which we hope will be forthcoming.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

P. S.—The Martha Lee cooking classes at 5 Winthrop sq. will open Tuesday evening, October 13 and Wednesday afternoon, October 14. Each of these free courses covers 10 weeks. There are a few vacancies in the Wednesday afternoon class so better enroll right away if you are planning to attend.

Daily True Story

Winning Her Man

THEY SAY that there are none so blind as those who will not see, and it must be true because nothing else would explain the stupidity of Tom Owens.

Tom had come to Glenville as the agent for a tire company and he hadn't been there three days before he met Eleanor Peterson and fell head over heels in love with her. Maybe he thought nobody knew it, but it wasn't long before practically everybody knew it, including Eleanor. All that was needed was to look at Tom when Eleanor was around. His eyes followed her constantly.

He was with her as often as he could be, too, but he never said anything. Tom thought he had reasons for not speaking and maybe they seemed good reasons to him.

To begin with, Eleanor was the daughter of a wealthy man and Tom was, as they say, just starting out. The way he looked at it for him to propose to Eleanor Peterson would mean that he was seeking to marry for money instead of love. And then, Eleanor had never given him any encouragement.

BLIND TO HER LOVE.

That's what he thought, anyway. Whenever she seemed to favor him in any way, Tom in his blindness, put it down to the fact that he was a newcomer in town and that she was merely trying to be nice to him. He was still thinking that after he had been there two years and everybody knew just how he felt about Eleanor. That's how blind he was.

For if he hadn't leaned backwards so much he would have understood that Eleanor was as much in love with him as he was with her. All he had to do was open his eyes and see. But all he could see was her father's wealth.

There wasn't anything that Eleanor could do about it. She understood what was in Tom's mind, but she, too, had her pride. Even in this modern age she couldn't speak first and practically ask him to marry her while telling him that he was foolish to be frightened by her father's money. So they went along, month after month, Tom still blind and Eleanor waiting.

It was like that when an agent for one of those English sweepstakes came to Glenville selling chances to win a fortune. Practically all of the younger set bought them, including Tom.

When he showed his ticket to Eleanor he said: "If I win a decent prize in this race it may change my whole life."

"Why?" Eleanor asked him.

"Then I'll have some money," he said.

And that's all he did say. He was still blind and wouldn't see.

TO ELEANOR FIRST

So it was that Tom first heard of his good fortune by telegram. He received a wire from the agent who had sold him the ticket telling him that he had won $50,000 and the first thing he thought about wasn't that he had such wonderful fortune, but that he could now ask Eleanor what he had so long wanted to ask her.

Because, the way he figured it, he could not now be considered a fortune hunter with $50,000 of his own. Fifty thousand dollars was a lot of money in Glenville. It's a lot of money in any town.

Five minutes after he received the wire he was on his way to Eleanor's house. He was [illegible] and flustered, of course, but he tried to consider what he would say to her. But when he saw her all his prepared speeches evaporated from his mind.

"I've won fifty thousand dollars in that race and will you marry me?" he said. After he had spoken he was a little appalled at his bluntness.

"I—didn't mean it that way," he stammered. "I mean that I love you—I've always loved you but I couldn't—that is—"

Eleanor smiled and interrupted him.

"You don't have to tell me," she said. "I've known it for a long time. Now say it again, as you ought to say it, and if you mention money I'll scream."

He began to see then what a fool he had been, and he moved closer to her. It wasn't necessary to speak any more.

Later they came back to realities and he took out the telegram and showed it to her.

"Please say you don't mind," he said. "After all, $50,000 is $50,000."

"Have you showed this to anybody else?" asked Eleanor as she reached out and took the telegram.

"No," said Tom, "you were the first. As soon as I got it I thought of what it meant and I—"

He stopped in amazement. Eleanor was tearing the telegram to bits. She smiled.

"I had to do something," she said. "You were so foolish, so terribly foolish and proud, and I understood why." She looked at the torn pieces of paper in her hand.

"This doesn't mean anything," she went on. "I had a friend of mine send it to you in the agent's name. I was hoping you would do what you did do." She stopped. "Do you mind?" she added.

BIG TEAMS IN 'SOFT' OPENING GRID GAMES TOMORROW

FANNING

—By GEORGE UNDERWOOD—

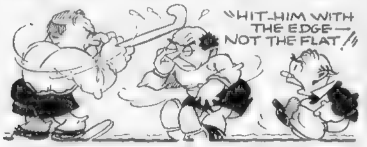
Granddad of Sports.
'Tis Game of Hurling.
Worlds Series Dope.
The St. Louis Kid.
Army's New Team.
Baseball Receipts.

AND 'HURLEY' IS AS PEPPY AS IT'S OLD

When St. Patrick came to Ireland just to chase the snakes away,
Sure he found the Celts a hurling, as you'll find them to this day.
'Tis an old, old game, is "hurley," yet 'tis played now, rule for rule,
As it was in ancient Erin in the days of Finn McCool

When the hurlers of Tipperary throw out their battle front against the picked team of New England Celts at Dilboy Field on Sunday, spectators will not only see as cockle of the heart warming a game as there is on the whole sports calendar, but they will see the oldest game in the world. Baseball is modern. Football, not the present-day game, but its great-great-great grandpappy, is medieval. Hurling is ancient. Hurling matches were a part of the Tailten Games, the ancient Irish festivals, which were founded in 3370 B. C. The fairs at Tailten and at Carman antedated even the ancient Olympic Games, and the Irish played at hurly long before the reign of Queen Tailte, in whose honor the ancient Celtic carnival at Tailten was established.

The earliest mention of Cuchulain and Finn MacCumhail, or Finn McCool as he came to be known, the legendary champions and chiefs of Erin is in regards to their prowess as hurlers. From those ancient times hurling has come straight down to the present, with the number of players and the size of the field the only changes. No sport is more shrouded in antiquity than the one which will be played at Dilboy Field next Sunday afternoon



"HIT-HIM WITH THE EDGE— NOT THE FLAT!"

Some time ago, the late Martin Sheridan, former Olympic and world's champion, and your humble scribe, sat opposite two "Tips" on the dinky little trolley car that used to run from Celtic Park to Long Island City after a match Tipperary had lost to Kilkenny. The two players were a bit in their cups. One "Tip" was berating the other for his poor playing

"You call yourself a hurly player!" he snorted. "Bedad, wi my own eyes I saw you beltin' a felly with the flat of your stick instead of the edge of it!"

With the exception of Pepper Martin, who will play center field in place of Douthit, and Dib Williams, who may supplant Joe Boley at short, despite Connie Mack's advance announcements to the contrary, the Athletics and Cardinals will throw out the same World Series lineup as they did last year. According to those mysterious gents who make the betting odds, the results will be the same, for the Athletics are 5 to 3 favorites. A torn ligament will keep Pitcher Jess Haines off the peak. Derringer will plug the Cardinal pitching gap. "Sparky" Adams will be back in the lineup at third.

"Pepper" is no misnomer for Martin. The kid who rode into the big league via freight train is a veritable pepper pot. Fear Lefty Grove? Not Martin! The kid says he will blow Lefty off the map! Pepper thinks he's "It," and he generally makes good. The ball players tell how in one Chicago-St. Louis game Martin was ordered to sacrifice. He turned up an inquiring nose at Gabby Street, but the order stood. Pepper laid down a beautiful bunt. When he trotted in to the bench he snarled at Street: "Say, what's the idea of makin' a real hitter like me sacrifice?" It's those cocky kids who generally make good when they're tamed a little.

When John Harvard gets off the choo choo or mayhap the steamboat, for three steamers have been chartered to take the crowd from Boston—at West Point, early next month, it scarcely will recognize the Army team as their buddies of 1930. The Army, figuratively, was shot to pieces by graduation. Messinger, Humber, Carlson, Bowman, Carlmark, Miller, Fletcher, Malloy, Parham, Hillsinger and others of last year's veterans now are scattered from Fort Ethan Allen to the Presidio, from Camp Bennings to Manila. It's a new Army team that will face the Crimson. Like all Army teams, it will be a good one.

Top

Considerable water has flowed down the Hudson since the last time we saw Harvard play the Army at West Point and witnessed a tragedy. The line bucks of Huntington—or was it Wendell?—smashed the Army front to a pulp. After one Crimson smash Cadet Byrne lay in a crumpled heap. With his white-haired father, Buffalo chief of police, following the stretcher off the field, the cadet was taken to the Post hospital, where he died before the end of the game.

Looks as if Elliot McSwann will be Oss's running mate on Colgate's end. Elliot comes from Natick, which Eddie Maher made famous . . . Fred Klauer of Newton is playing a great game for Colgate also . . . Another Bay State boy at Colgate is Al Altavesta of Woburn.

"Depression, there ain't no such thing, as the farmer said of the giraffe," the baseball magnates have been declaring all season. "Business is bigger and better than ever." But now along comes a yarn which says baseball has fallen off more than 25 per cent and that the 1931 receipts are $1,000,000 behind last year! As far as local baseball is concerned the Braves played to bigger receipts than last year. The Red Sox suffered a slight loss on the intake, due principally to lost dates. The Weather Man, not Depression, socked Bob Quinn!

Although Bob Quinn, the Red Sox Chief, is genial, kind and jolly,
He's off the Weather Man for life—indeed he is, By Golly!
The Rain Maker and his Sprinkling Can washed out so many dates
That Bob, when he started to figger out, just what were this year's gates,
Grew sad of face, his voice it shook, he shed a salty tear

EAGLE SQUAD READY FOR CATHOLIC U.

One light signal drill remains on the schedule for the Boston College eleven before it enters its first game, with Catholic University of Washington, D. C., at Fenway Park tomorrow afternoon.

With the first cut in years reducing the squad to 40 players, McKenney has found it easier to get acquainted with the ability of the respective players and he has grouped them in three teams, A, B and C.

Team A which has been running through plays for the past week as the first team has been nominated by the coaching staff to begin the game as a unit.

Although the Eagles have taken Catholic University as easily as Grant took Richmond in past few years, the contest this fall is expected to be much different in character. With the advent of Coach Henry "Dutch" Bergman of Notre Dame as head coach at the southern institution athletics took the upgrade.

Bergman's efforts have begun to bear fruit with this fall's eleven and the athletes whom he trained as freshmen a year ago are forcing the older athletes to take second place.

In fact the Boston College coaching staff is looking upon this game with C. U. as the test which will spell [illegible] or success for the Eagles for the rest of the year. McKenney, like Bergman, has a green eleven at the Heights and he figures that if his boys triumph by a large margin as in past years they will gain the confidence to face any team they come up against.

Thirty-three in the Catholic U. Squad

Thirty-three-strong, led by Coaches "Dutch" Bergman and Forrest Cotton, the Catholic University squad arrived at South Station this morning after a night on the sleepers. The coaches led the boys to the hotel for a rest before going to Fenway Park to run through signal formations and get accustomed to the field.

"Three hundred of the graduates flocked to Union Station, Washington, last night, and gave the team a great sendoff," said Bergman. "We have a stronger team than last year, and, win or lose, there will be no repetition of the 1930 debacle."

Trainer Louis Brunelle said all the boys were in good playing condition. After tomorrow's game the C. U. band will be tendered a dinner at the University Club by the C. U. Alumni Association. The oratory and the eats will be served at 6 p. m.

Fittons Clash With Trojans on Sabbath

Boasting of the strongest team in their history, the Quincy Trojans eleven are confident that they will defeat the New England champion Fitton team when they meet Sunday afternoon at Fore River Field, Quincy.

Included in the Trojan lineup is Comporato, former Syracuse star, who ran through the entire Providence Steamroller for a touchdown two years ago.

By Eddie Casey

Harvard Head Coach and All-American Star

Eddie Casey will write an exclusive article for the Boston Evening American each Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

The football world hitherto has had snatches of information about the leading teams from coast to coast in scrimmage reports, and tomorrow the first real page in the 1931 football volume will be written when teams [illegible] practically all [illegible] of the country engage in opening [illegible] games.

It is generally [illegible] that most of the [illegible] September schedules are [illegible] known as the soft games. There has been considerable agitation in recent years on the part of the football reformers to eliminate these so-called soft early games, but they continue and undoubtedly will continue because it is a peculiarity of football that no big team wants to start off against another good big team.

To do so would defeat the purpose of an opening game. It is equally true that no good small college team wants to open against another good small college team, because like the big college team it prefers to be tested before it starts to battle in its own class.

Coaches Expect Faults to Show

Most coaches look upon opening games as a means of [illegible]ing out new men, and for experimenting with types of offense and players. Coaches expect many crudities to show. They expect penalties. They expect to learn enough about their squads to enable them to prepare for games with more evenly matched opponents a week and two weeks from now.

Generally all the games scheduled tomorrow afternoon, as

YALE ADOPTS NEW GRID SYSTEM

New Haven, Ct., Sept. 25 (AP)—Men and methods have arrived simultaneously at Yale to paint a picture of football prospects as glowing as the blue in the Eli's battle flag.

Last of all the great eastern universities to give up the ancient principles of the straight away line buck, the tackle plunge and the orthodox end sweep as the basis of an attack, Yale finally has cut loose with a new system that combines the highlights of three of the nation's most devastating offenses.

Wealth of Backfield Material at Hand

Although Booth, a sensation in the East for the past two years, has been bothered with appendicitis attacks there will be no scarcity of ball carriers even without the little captain. Joe Crowley is a veteran plunger and runner and there are Taylor, Mulfeld, Heim, Parker, Sullivan, Hughes, Sandberg, Lassater and Levering for [illegible]

TUFTS STAR IN HOSPITAL

[illegible] memory, Freshman Herman Tyrance of Tufts was removed, unconscious, from scrimmage yesterday [illegible] scrimmage with the first team and Dr. James K. Brazzer, the varsity physician ordered X-ray.

Tyrance later became conscious [illegible] the name.

Tyrance is a graduate of Attleboro high and Dean Academy and made a name for himself there on the basketball court. Tyrance is out for halfback on the first-year eleven.

Coach Manle [illegible] next Mon[illegible] est report [illegible] planned for today but he desires to give the green men a little more practice.

Babe Sets World's Record With Fungo Bat

New York, Sept. [illegible]—As a prelude to the double header played at the Polo Grounds here by the Giants, Yanks and Robins for the benefit of the Mayor's Fund for the unemployed, Babe Ruth set a new world's record for fungo hitting.

Babe drove a ball 421 feet and eight inches, as compared to Ed Walsh's previous record of 419 feet and six inches.

In the two exhibition games, the Giants beat the Robins 3 to 1, the Flatbush flock also dropping the decision to the Yanks 5 to 1.

The receipts amounted to $18,135. Including the first game of the three-game series, the mayor's committee is enriched $107,777.50.

BIG RENO BOUT FOR DEMPSEY

[illegible] Sept. 25 (INS)—Jack [illegible] heavyweight champion, may appear in his first major engagement since his return to the ring at Reno next June, it was indicated today.

Jim McKay and Bill Graham, [illegible] gambling interests [illegible] were prepared [illegible] made [illegible] Jack against [illegible] weight in a 25 round battle.

Although New York, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland and Miami interests are negotiating for Jack's services, he declared that he was inclined to give the Reno promoters [illegible] future fight.

"If I feel that my condition warrants it," said Dempsey, "I would welcome a bout with Schmeling in June. Of course much depends on how I get along in the ring in the next few months."

A'S PICKED TO BEAT CARDS IN FOUR STRAIGHT

PITCHING OF MACKMEN IS BIG FACTOR

By JOE CASHMAN

The world's champion Philadelphia Athletics are quoted as 7 to 5 favorites to successfully defend their title against the St. Louis Cardinals, National League title-holders, when these rivals clash in the World Series for the second successive season, starting next Thursday.

Last fall the A's were an almost unanimous choice to win. This year, the betting odds indicate that there is quite a difference of opinion as to the result.

There are several reasons why the Cards will enter the coming classic with more supporters than any senior circuit standard bearer in years.

One is that the Streetmen will have the advantage of playing the first two games on their own back yard in the Mound City.

Another is that the Redbirds shape up much stronger than a year back, due to the acquisition of Paul Derringer, the best rookie pitcher of the campaign, and Pepper Martin, a first-class outfielder, while the Mackmen don't appear quite as strong on paper as they did in 1930.

Still another is that the A's having taken four out of five from the Cubs in the '29 series, and four out of six from the Cards last fall, will be seeking their third straight world's championship, something no team in major league history has ever accomplished.

Yet, despite all these advantages, the Cards won't come any closer, if as close, to winning than they did last year, as these eyes look at it, and we say that earnestly, hoping that the Streetmen will prove us wrong, for we feel that after four years of failure, it's about time for the National League to gain the title.

Last fall we hit the nail right on the head by picking the A's to win in six games. We were lucky. This year we like the A's to win in four straight games and won't credit Lady Luck with any assistance if right, providing Connie Mack uses his pitchers as we figure.

The schedule of the series dooms the Cards, to our way of thinking.

The first two games will be played at St. Louis on October 1 and 2. The third and fourth games in Philadelphia will not be played until October 5 and 6.

All of which means that Grove and Earnshaw should hurl the first two contests and should come back, each with a three-day rest, to work the third and fourth tilts.

Waterville, Me., Sept. 25—The Colby football squad finished preparation for the opening game of the season, with Brown University at Providence, tomorrow, with a short signal drill.

Twixt Tee and Cup

After the annual two-day Vesper Country Club two-day tournament, which started this morning, the curtain will fall on the 1931 open season. Vesper is in fine condition and, if the weather is favorable, one of the largest fields of the season will be in action.

While the open tournament contestants are at Vesper, the Oyster Harbors Club will be host to a group of invited guests.

Interest in golf among the fair sex of this vicinity should increase next season for the national women's championship will be held at the Salem Country Club.

Although the regular season will be officially closed tomorrow, the Leslie and Endicott cup matches are listed for next week. The Leslie cup players will gather at the Charles River Country Club, while the Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island women will be at Shuttle Meadow C. C., New Britain, Ct., on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

The Winchester Country Club is holding a mixed foursome tournament of the season next Wednesday. Commonwealth is an ideal course for a mixed foursome tourney and the score should be low at the Chestnut Hill course.

Although he did not finish in the money, Aubrey Boomer, who is the playing professional at St. Cloud, France, left a fine impression with Wollaston galleries. If Boomer can get his passport extended six months he will join the Flying Circus for the winter tour.

Bobby Jones played at Myopia a week ago and sported a complete set of the latest clubs. His wood clubs have tremendously large heads, while all of his irons are flanged on the bottom after the style of sand wedges.

After watching the best the country has to offer in professionals at Wannamoisett and Wollaston, it is the writer's opinion that Dave Hackney, Vesper, hits the ball as well as any player in the game. Hackney's weakness is lack of championship experience and streaky putting. Otherwise, he looks as good, if not better, than any of the big timers.

Gene Sarazen did not register with the crowd at Wollaston after he had expressed a desire to quit when he took a seven on the first hole of the third round. Sarazen's attitude was that he was doing somebody a favor playing at Wollaston and that if he withdrew the championship would flop.

After one golf manufacturing concern had secured him his position at the Albany, N. Y., C. C. and guaranteed his credit, Tommie Creavy jumped to another as soon as he won the P. G. A. championship. Another proof that the only gratitude is under the "G's" in the old Webster dictionary.

LEONARD HERE SUNDAY

Benny Leonard arrives in Boston Sunday night. Leonard comes here to meet Vittoria Livan, Italian middleweight in the Argonne A. A. feature bout at the Boston Arena, next Wednesday night.

Leonard will be accompanied by Teddy Hayes, former trainer of Jack Dempsey, who also trained Mickey Walker. Jack Kearns and Mickey Walker will arrive later and all of them will be in Leonard's corner in his bout against Livan.

Almost invincible during his reign in the ring, it is reported that Leonard has reached the top of his form again. In Livan, Leonard will meet an aggressive type of fighter.

YOU CAN BUY MORE TODAY With Your Old Car

Hudson-Essex Fall Campaign is on

Get Your Appraisal Now

Scores now know the full buying power of their old car

During the past week scores of motorists have discovered the full buying power of their present cars.

Our Great Fall Appraisal Campaign is now going on. We are giving the most generous allowances on trade-ins in our history. You who plan to get a new car this fall or next spring—here is the greatest buying opportunity of the year. There is more buying power in your used car now. There are irresistible bargains in our stock of new cars. Everything is in your favor.

Eliminate the repair and depreciation expenses that you will certainly have to pay if you use your old car another winter. Drive a new Hudson or Essex. On the allowances we make the monthly payments are most likely to be less than you would lose in waiting until spring.

The very latest motor car advantages are included in both Hudson and Essex. Smart, good looks—Selective Free Wheeling—Startix—which starts your motor at the mere turning of the ignition switch—powerful, economical performance—Rare Riding Comfort—big, roomier bodies—new fall colors—and a 90-day or 4,000 mile Owner's Service Policy that protects you anywhere in the United States.

Remember your old car will get you the biggest allowance here that you ever heard of. It will get you a Hudson or Essex that is right up to the minute in every detail of appearance and mechanical development. It is particularly fortunate for you that our used car stocks are so low that we can make such liberal allowances. Bring in your used car now. It's your opportunity to make a deal you will never regret.

BOSTON COLLEGE HIGH BATTLES MEMORIAL

BRIGHTON, ENGLISH IN GRID TILT

Boston school football teams will swing into action today with a double bill carded at the Fens Stadium. English high will battle Brighton, while Mechanics Art takes on Jamaica Plain.

Boston College high will play Memorial, Dedham will tangle with Noble and Greenough, while Wellesley will clash with Country Day.

English high is a favorite to defeat Brighton, and as Leo Daley's team shapes up as the likely winner of the local schoolboy championship an easy victory is predicted over Brighton.

This quartet has more speed than any backfield in these parts has shown to date, and all it has to do is cut loose to run up a big score on its Brighton rivals.

Tom Scanlon has about 70 candidates for his Brighton team, and although many of the boys lack experience, he is sure to put out a formidable eleven.

Jamaica Plain Shapes Up Well

Jamaica Plain looks better on paper than Mechanic Arts, its rival in the other half of the twin bill at Fens Stadium. But Mechanics is not by any means a weak outfit, and although Jamaica Plain should win, the victory will not be an easy one.

Boston College high school, which has had fine teams every fall under the direction of Art McManus, former Boston College ace, ought to have an easy task with Memorial High. With plenty of veterans, the junior Eagles should pile up a big score.

There will be plenty of action on schoolboy gridirons tomorrow. One of the outstanding games on the list is the clash between Medford and Brockton at Medford. Medford, lacking veteran material, had a hard job in holding Wakefield High scoreless last Saturday, while Brockton was defeating New Bedford Vocational, 13 to 6.

It looks as if Medford is due to taste defeat for the first time, although Coach Collins has a bunch of fighters on his Medford team who battle better under pressure, and the result is by no means easy to predict.

Malden high will play Rogers in another standout game, with the Malden boys favored to keep their slate clean. Newton is going to find stiff opposition in Arlington high. The Arlington team showed unexpected strength in the opener with Cambridge Latin, and Newton, despite its strength, will have a busy afternoon.

Brookline high will open with Lynn Central in a game that will attract lots of attention. Brookline has the makings of a good team, and its showing against Lynn will give an insight to its real power.

Revere will go to Peabody with the best team it has had in several years.

KICKING OFF SCHOLASTIC LID

As cocktails to the college football opening tomorrow, Boston's scholastic elevens will play several games today. Here you see FRANCIS McNULTY, star and of Memorial high, kicking off the lid. Memorial high plays B. C. high at Franklin Field and great will be the carnage. From the high school teams of today come the college champions of the morrow. Follow ALL football news through the BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN.

Northeastern middlers defeated the freshmen, 3-2, at Columbus ave. in the interclass baseball series.

well as the 48 night games scheduled today and tomorrow, will be typical early season games. Probably the one exception to this may develop on the Pacific Coast, where St. Mary's and University of Southern California play at Los Angeles. Here are a couple of big teams hooking up in an early season game that may provide plenty of action. A year ago St. Mary's, coached by Skip Madigan, lost only one game, that to California, 7 to 6. The Oakland eleven came East and whipped Fordham, 20-12, and Major Cavanaugh had an outstanding Eastern team a year ago, the defeat by St. Mary's the only one Fordham received.

Coast Feature Is Grid Highlight

There is no big game to correspond to this Pacific Coast clash in any other section. In the Southern sector North Carolina plays Wake Forest, Texas plays Simmons. Other games pair Texas A. and M. and Southwestern, Tulane and Mississippi, Virginia and Randolph-Macon.

Practically every team in the East swings into action, and Chicago and Minnesota lead the way for the Big Ten teams by playing double-headers. Two weeks of practice hardly is enough to prepare for an opening game, however, and both Conference teams can be expected to have difficulty performing smoothly.

Army, held back somewhat by injuries, starts off against Ohio Northern. Boston College plays Catholic University. Brown shows for the first time against Colby, and New York University plays Hobart and Fordham meets Thiel. Georgetown and Lebanon Valley, Holy Cross and St. Bonaventure, Columbia and Middlebury, Dartmouth and Norwich, Cornell and Clarkson are among other Eastern games which for various reasons will hold interest.

Army undoubtedly will have one eye on its own game and another watching for reports from Michigan State's showing against Alma, a small mid-Western college which it beat 28 to 0 a year ago. Jim Crowley, former member of the famous Notre Dame Four Horsemen, has had good teams at Michigan State for two years, and he is expected to give Army a very hard game two weeks from tomorrow.

Thoughts of the Four Horsemen bring up the other members of the quartet. Elmer Layden's Duquesne team, which plays Holy Cross a week from tomorrow, matches up with West Virginia, which won in the game a year ago, 7-0, and Harry Stuhldreher's Villanova team plays Loyola. The fourth member of that backfield, Don Miller, is backfield coach at Navy.

In the East the schedule holds no bright spots and, indeed, few big teams will be even extended. Cornell, which will steam roller Clarkson, will, however, show just how Bart Viviano, its great back, is to go this season with the able sophomore, John Ferrar, who was a fine freshman back. Dartmouth plays Norwich in the Big Green's usual opener. Accounts from Hanover this week indicate that a sophomore back from Malden, Sam Fishman, has been running wild. Andrew Oberlander, Myles Lane and Al Marsters, other Boston boys at Dartmouth, all showed early marks of greatness in Norwich games. Fishman may be destined to follow in their shoes.

Spectators will find the game the same from the rules standpoint with the one exception of the change regarding the point after touchdown. The ruling in the past has been that the point would be awarded by an official in case of a penalty against the offense. This season on the try for point any penalty will be enforced as in regular scrimmage play.

Another exclusive article on football by Eddie Casey will appear in the sports pages of the Boston Evening American on Monday.

WENDELL JOINS HARVARD STAFF

Percy Wendell, who once hit the line for Harvard some years back and acquired the nickname, "Bullet," took his place today on the Crimson varsity football coaching staff.

Wendell, former head coach at Williams College and Lehigh University, will drill the Crimson varsity squad until the opening of freshman football next Monday. He will then assume the role of [illegible] coach under [illegible].

In 1912 Wendell was [illegible] of the Harvard eleven.

When Coach Tom Whalen's Pere Marquette [illegible] team makes its season['s] [illegible] against the Paterson, N. J., [illegible] at Lincoln Park they will be facing one of the shiftiest teams in professional football. Jack Riley, wearing No. 12 for Paterson, will come in for considerable attention for he is a Notre Dame product and knows Knute Rockne's system thoroughly.

The fact that the [illegible] of the Angel Guardian band with 50 pieces will furnish music for Sunday's opening adds considerable tone to this getaway game.

Maureen Orcutt in Canadian Tourney

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 25 (INS)—Despite her defeat here in the women's national championship Miss Maureen Orcutt announced today she would defend her title in the Canadian women's tourney starting Monday at Toronto. Miss Enid Wilson, Great Britain, will also compete in Toronto as well as Miss Virginia Van Wie.

HARD OPENER FOR TERRIER ELEVEN

A picked squad of 25 Boston University football players, three coaches, two managers and a trainer made up the Terrier group that left Riverside station early this morning in a special car for the opening game with Williams at Williamstown tomorrow.

The team will go direct to Pittsfield, where it will work out at the high school field as guests of the school authorities this afternoon. Tonight the squad will be entertained at a theater party and will stay in Pittsfield over night. They will motor to Williamstown tomorrow morning for the game.

For an opening game tomorrow's affair promises to be a thriller. The teams are very evenly matched. Both lineups will have seven regulars from last year and four newcomers starting.

Williams will be a slight favorite due to the excellent record the Purple made last fall. Under Coach Caldwell, the Berkshire outfit lost one game and won the Little Three championship.

The Williams' offense is centered about Capt. Fowle. The Purple leader calls the signals and acts as a triple threat. He is a good booter, an accurate passer, a heady open field runner and he does a neat job in picking plays.

Crown unsteady! Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare wears the Women's golf crown, but the headpiece is shaky today. The queen plays Virginia Van Wie at Buffalo. Virginia upset Maureen Orcutt, 2 and 1, in the quarter-finals. Even if Glenna wins today, her title will not be secured, for she probably will face Enid Wilson of England in the final. MISS VAN WIE, MRS. VARE IN SEMIFINAL

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 25 (US)—The favorites in the women's national golf championship, Virginia Van Wie of Chicago, Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare of Philadelphia, Helen Hicks of Long Island and Enid Wilson of England, entered the semifinal round today.

Mrs. Vare, last year's champion, takes on Miss Van Wie, runner-up in the tourney of 1930, while the British champion, Miss Wilson, tees up against Helen Hicks, the Metropolitan leader.

The victory of Miss Van Wie over Miss Orcutt, Canadian titleholder, was the only match in the nature of an upset.

Miss Van Wie said she was going to beat Maureen to get revenge for the last time they met, when Maureen beat her in the North and South battle. She made good her statement. It was a great match right all the way.

WANER BREAKS THIRD RECORD

Pittsburgh, Sept. 25 (AP)—Lloyd Waner, brilliant little outfielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates, has broken another major league record—the third he has smashed in his brief career.

When "little poison" stepped up to the plate in the seventh inning of yesterday's game against the Phillies, it marked the six hundred and seventy-third official time to his credit, which is one better than the previous record held by Rabbit Maranville of the Boston Braves. Maranville made that mark in 1922, when he was with the Pirates. Maranville took part in 155 games that season; Waner has played 152.

Two other records Waner holds are the modern major league mark for singles in one season, and he was the first to hit more than 20 safeties in his initial campaign in the majors. He made both marks in 1927, the year he came up.

Andy Martin Takes on Pancho Villa

When Pancho Villa of New Bedford faces Andy Martin of this city next Monday night at the Boston Arena, he will engage the attention of the cleverest lightweight in this vicinity.

Andy has given several young men boxing lessons during his career and he is determined to prove to the customers that he is a better boxer than Sammy Fuller.

A fine preliminary card in which local men will appear has been arranged by Matchmaker George Freeman.

MR. BOSTON

—By JACK CONWAY—

Primo Carnera should open a class and give lessons in how to reduce weight. When the Ambling Alp started training for his bout with Jack Sharkey he scaled 276 pounds.

After six weeks in a training camp, Primo is down to 250 pounds. He has shaved off 26 pounds just as if that much poundage was not anything at all.

Carnera at 250 pounds is a tremendous fighting man. Unlike most big men, he is fast and very aggressive. With two years more experience Carnera should be a mighty heavyweight threat.

Mr. Boston

If Carnera knew his own strength and just went in and tossed punches, regardless of where they landed, he would lick any heavyweight in the world. But like most big men, he tries to do the same thing as his smaller opponent and loses some of the advantage which his great bulk gives him.

Should Keep Punching

I don't think any of the big fellows would stand a chance of defeating Carnera in a battle in a cellar. With such a setting, Primo wouldn't try to box. He would adopt ape man tactics and tear his opponent to threads.

If Carnera just acted the part of the ape man in the ring and kept swinging with his ponderous fists, he would pile up a string of knockout victories which would be quite impressive.

Jack Sharkey, who battles Carnera in New York on October 12, has returned to Boston. He will continue his training here, and will motor back to New York the latter part of next week.

Sharkey will lay off on boxing so as to give his injured left hand an opportunity to get strong again. Sharkey didn't suffer a fracture or a break. The trouble was soreness to an old injury. This caused considerable swelling in the vicinity of the little finger.

Jimmy Johnston, promoter of the Sharkey-Carnera bout, thought that the story of Sharkey's injury was a plot on the part of the New York Garden to steal the American heavyweight champion away from him. Jimmy believed that the Garden was trying to match Sharkey with Tommy Loughran.

The public felt the injured hand yarn was merely a steam up to help the ticket sale.

Training experts had a hunch Sharkey knew Carnera was on edge for a bout on October 1 and was anxious to get him off his stride.

Muldoon on Warpath

Leon See, Carnera's manager, didn't take kindly to the idea of Primo meeting Sharkey on October 12 instead of on October 1. Which caused William Muldoon, veteran member of the New York Boxing Commission to express himself in rather forceful terms about foreign boxers who are picking up a great deal of soft money here. When Muldoon got through talking, See fell in line with the new date.

Ernie Schaaf and Johnny Buckley are back in town from Chicago. It is likely that the Wrentham Tiger will return to Chicago the latter part of next month to tackle Tuffy Griffiths again.

Schaaf and Griffiths drew $11,000, which indicates there isn't any serious depression in the boxing game when the proper card is offered.

M-G-M Will Film 'Black Oxen'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Sept. 25—Of all the roles that Clara Bow ever played she played the one of the flapper granddaughter in "Black Oxen" as the best. Curious, too, because the real lead was played by Corinne Griffith, who as the rejuvenated grandame, had an excellent opportunity.

Gertrude Atherton's novel has now been purchased by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. I don't like to print rumors any more than you may like to read them but sometimes it becomes necessary. The rumor I'm about to give you now is that Joan Crawford will play the part that Corinne Griffith had in Miss Atherton's novel on the screen.

Louella O. Parsons

If Joan plays this part, it will necessitate two distinct makeups—that of a beautiful woman and that of a woman who looks her 60 years.

Hollywood Griddy

Nowhere in the world is there as much football enthusiasm as in Hollywood. Even the sad passing of Knute Rockne hasn't dimmed the interest in the gridiron among the studio folk. Everyone will want to be at the opening game on Saturday and because of this the studios have given notice that during football season the clerical forces who usually work all day Saturdays may begin work at 8.30 a. m. and work until 1 p. m. so that they can see the games, or work all day, just as they choose.

One good job in the United States is worth a dozen in Germany. Jeanette MacDonald had many European offers, but she turned them down pronto when Paramount cabled her an offer to play opposite Maurice Chevalier in "One Hour With You." Chevalier doesn't get here until the 29th of October, and that gives Jeanette ample time to finish her European trip and be on the set when George Zukor, the director, calls the roll. Chevalier had a talk with Jeanette when she appeared in concert in Paris. At that time he expressed the hope that she might again be his leading lady. Miss MacDonald's voice, one of the best on the screen, was a decided asset in "The Love Parade."

Seen and Heard

Wesley Ruggles has issued invitations to a football tea in honor of Arleen Judge on Saturday. Miss Judge gets in from New York and Wesley is celebrating her return by taking her to the football game and then bringing home the football enthusiasts. Will Rogers is borrowing Hal Roach's airplane and pilot to take a trip to Claremont, Oklahoma. Will just has to go back and talk to the cracker box sages once in a while. Meet Kathlyn Williams, business woman. You've seen her on the screen but you've never met this new Kathlyn who is engrossed in the manufacture of the new visible carpet sweeper.

Among the things of interest is the hurried trip of Buster Collier to San Francisco. He was called there by the illness of a relative. Hollywood is buying tickets for the opening of Jane Cowl's "Camille." It isn't Jane who is the inspiration for the box office sale. It's Gilbert Roland who will bring the film people into the theater. Oh dear, oh dear, I am glad Charlotte Greenwood plays opposite Buster Keaton in "Her Cardboard Lover." Wait until you see Charlotte Greenwood and Eddie Cantor in "Palmy Days." Jimmy Durante, too, is in Buster Keaton's picture. Jimmy is one of my favorites on or off the screen. His speech when he presented Marion Davies with the key to the city at her party is a classic.

Plum for Goulding

Not every director can go to Europe and come home and have the plum of the year put in his lap. Edmund Goulding, who took a vacation and spent some time abroad, returned to find that Irving Thalberg wanted him to direct "Grand Hotel." That's the picture that all of the directors have been vying with each other for a chance to direct. Mr. Goulding is now working on the script and once it is completed the cast will be assembled. Irving Thalberg has said it will be an all-star picture with the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer headliners all taking part.

Even Ruth Chatterton must have wondered where she was to hang her hat during the next year. One story would circulate that she was remaining on at Paramount. The next day a new story would make the rounds that Warner Brothers had no intention of not going through with the contract which they arranged with her several months ago. However, it's all settled now and don't listen to any more rumors. Miss Chatterton joins the Warner Brothers' stellar forces on November 1. They are already seaching for a suitable story for her first starring picture there.

Charles King, Boston Star

Charles King, "Broadway Melody" man, has returned to vaudeville and will be the headliner at the RKO Keith-Boston tomorrow. King, whose wife was Lila Rhodes, is a cousin of George M. Cohan by marriage. Miss Rhodes' father and George M. Cohan's mother are brother and sister. It was while the popular juvenile was featured in "The Yankee Prince," a Cohan production, that King met Miss Rhodes, who also was in the cast, though in a minor role. Fate took a hand in elevating her to stardom, however, when the leading lady of the play became sick and Miss Rhodes stepped into the part and became a star overnight. Soon after they were married. King is a brother of Mollie King, the former movie star who dazzled audiences with her thrilling stunts in the days when serials were the vogue.

Charles King

Charlie is a great animal lover, too, and his Long Island home is famous for its polo ponies and dogs. His best liked house pet, he says, is an English bulldog.

Chosen to play the lead in "The Broadway Melody," the first of the successful musical movie talkies, King added his name to the stellar lights of filmdom as well as those of vaudeville and musical comedy.

Copley Starts Season Oct. 3

Announcement is made that the Copley Theater will open for the season Saturday evening, October 3. The opening play will be "Tonight or Never," by Lili Hatvany. This play was successfully produced by the late David Belasco at his own theater last season and had a long run. The role of the prima donna, portrayed for nearly eight months by Helen Gahagan, will be taken in this production at the Copley by Lillian Gahagan, her talented sister.

The management of the Copley has carefully selected a competent company for this production, which will be under the stage direction of E. P. Goodnow. The box office will be open Monday morning at nine o'clock.

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Cornelius Vanderbilt's two-year-old filly, Top Flight, is shown winning the $115,000 Futurity at Belmont Park in as thrilling a finish as ever has been seen on the race track. With the Empire State Building, New York city is preparing for the opening of the Washington Memorial Bridge across the North River from New York to New Jersey, the mightiest structure ever conceived, with the longest span ever built. "Human flies" are shown putting the finishing touches on the bridge.

"PINAFORE" PLEASES AUDIENCE IN LYRIC PREMIERE

THE VOICE OF Broadway

By Louis Sobol

A Little o' This—A Little o' That!

It was when the late Ysaye, the famous but eccentric violinist, was touring Europe with his orchestra that he received a call to conduct a concert at Lucerne, Switzerland. The musician wired to the town officials to have an orchestra ready for him to rehearse and, leaving his own organization behind in Milan, he departed for the Swiss terrain. All afternoon he put the orchestra provided for him through its paces, and along toward 5 in the afternoon, he called the leader and said: "Have your band ready at the hall tonight at 8 o'clock sharp." The leader let out a yell. He rushed over, hugged the distinguished musician, kissed him on both cheeks and on both hands, whirled around and shouted to his men: "Do you hear? Tonight! Eight o'clock sharp! We must all be there. Tonight! Eight o'clock sharp!" Ysaye, according to Meyer Davis, who tells the story, was bewildered. He couldn't understand why the simple request that the band be ready at 8 o'clock that night should incite so much enthusiasm and frenzy. "Why," he asked, puzzled of the leader, "do you make such a fuss? Have I said something wrong in asking you to appear at 8 o'clock?" The leader of the band cackled hysterically: "Do you know?" he sputtered excitedly, "we have had famous musicians from all over the world rehearse us, but this is the first time anyone has rehearsed us and been satisfied to have us come back and play for him!"

Footlights Stuff!

I don't know what it is that inspires some people with the stage yearn any more than I can tell you why every third reader writes in for advice on how to become a Broadway columnist. The case I have in mind at this particular time is that of a chap named Russell Rhodes. A graduate of Dartmouth, he joined the army during the war and after his discharge entered the diplomatic service. For eight years he was vice-consul of London, belonged to the exclusive Embassy Club, became a pal of the Prince of Wales and, among other things, was foreign correspondent for a few American newspapers. They predicted great things for the lad. What did he do? Chucked his career to take part in amateur theatricals, then studied with Professor Bake, at Yale, and then joined Lawrence Langner's group at Westport. He'll probably be seen with Langner's repertory company in New York this season—but not in the most important role. If you can figure it out, don't bother to wire.

For the Old-Timers!

Do you remember, queries Harry Lewis, the legalist, when the late Captain Churchill was really a police captain and started his career as a patrolman in the Chinatown section downtown? He was the first restaurateur of note to close his place when Prohibition came in, refusing to sell liquor. The ironic note is that he immediately leased his cafe to a Chinese restaurant company.

When 40th Street, between Broadway and 7th Avenue, had the famous "Poodle Dog" and other basement cabarets which were the forerunners of the present-day night clubs, although the original places were forced to close?

When the Bicycle Club of America had its clubrooms in a four-story ramshackle building at Times Square? It was torn down to make way for the Pabst Building, a 12-story skyscraper which was shortly razed to make room for the subway and the triangular Times Building.

When the cabbies and their droskys infested Longacre Square just as the taxis do today until the small hours of the morning and the residents complained then of the noise of the horses' hoofs?

When the McDermott brothers sold their saloon on 42nd and 7th Avenue to move to more lucrative fields at 42nd and 6th Avenue? The Paddel brothers, to whom they sold out, helped build the Hermitage Hotel out of their profits.

When Hammerstein's was in full bloom and the shine stand outside of Paddel's was the amen corner for the George Primroses, the Rice & Prevosts, the Eddie Leonards, the Lonely Haskells and Don the Talking Dog would all talk it over while having a shine.

When Will Rogers, booked at the Hammerstein Roof for the first time, ballyhooed his act by riding a pony on 7th Avenue, from 34th to 42nd, with a banner, a lariat—and a stick of gum in his mouth?

When Morris Gest was a ticket speculator at Hammerstein's? . . . When Adele Ritchie fainted under the spotlight glare at the Broadway Theater while singing "Could You Be True to Eyes of Blue" in the "Silver Slipper" with Sam Bernard? . . . When Lotta Faust was the most beautiful soubrette in musicomedy? . . . When in one year burlesque featured such names as Harry Fox, Alex Carr, Dave Ferguson, Clark & McCullough, Bert Lahr and James Baron?

When Hell's Kitchen had the town's worst gang on 39th Street, off 10th Avenue, the boys battling with the Chain Gang of 28th Street? The cops were usually met with bricks from the roof—but nobody was shot in the back those days—and no babies were killed.

Caledonian Club to Sponsor Gaelic Plays

The Caledonian Club of Boston will sponsor the first of a series of Scottish plays to be offered by the Edinborough Players during the coming season. The first play will be Barrie's "What Every Woman Knows," to be presented in Burns Hall, Caledonian Building, on the evening of Tuesday, October 13.

North American

The selling of utilities [illegible] in recent weeks converged on North American and this equity dropped sharply into new low ground. Power consumption has been most disappointing and considered along with the political aspects definitely indicates the [illegible] is to be avoided. Of particular interest to students is the effect of North American's stock dividend policy in a period of falling revenues.

Otis Elevator attracts some buying on the strength of the loaning premium. Fact of the matter is that the market in spite of the recent payment of the regular, is considering the small volume of unfilled orders and low state of building.

Economists are predicting the pound sterling will ultimately be stabilized at about $2.50. Many of them think Britain will then go back on a gold standard. In the meantime inflation and rising prices will be the order of the day within England.

More Frieght Cars in Need of Repairs

Class 1 railroads on September 1 had 187,585 freight cars in need of repairs or 8.6 per cent of the number on line according to the car service division of the American Railway Association.

This was an increase of 3,076 cars above the number in need of repair on August 15, at which time there were 184,509 or 8.4 per cent.

Freight cars in need of heavy repairs on September 1 totaled 132,982 or 6.1 per cent, an increase of 1,248 compared with the number on August 15, while freight cars in need of light repairs totaled 54,603 or 2.5 per cent.

PRICES MOSTLY LOWER IN BOSTON

The [illegible] $10,713 but [illegible] more than offset by the $16,26[illegible] in increase in depreciation and equalization. For the eight months to August 31, net income was $276,583 less than a year ago or $131,659 against $3[illegible] where again increased depreciation was a factor. The depreciation and equalization charge for the eight months this year was $634,8[illegible] compared with $[illegible] last year or $193,179 greater.

The increase in depreciation is accounted for principally by the fact that the road has bought 35 to 40 new buses during the year. Buses are being depreciated at the rate of 3 cents a mile and 2 cents a mile additional for overhaul.

Electricity Sales Figures Show Gain

Chicago, Sept. 25—August electricity sales of Pacific Northwest Public Service Co., subsidiary of Central Public Service Corp., were 40,553,841 kilowatt hours, 10.3 per cent larger than sales in Aug. 1930. Sales for the first eight months of 1931 were 2[illegible]7,31[illegible],402 kilowatt hours, 6.3 per cent higher than in the comparable period last year.

Profits Taken at Closing in London

London, Sept. 25. Profits were taken on a large scale near the closing of the stock exchange [illegible] pulling prices down. This [illegible] heavily bought [illegible] for a couple of sessions, naturally sold off most. Domestic issues were more active than trans-Atlantics, which were mostly advanced.

Wheat Sells Lower, Then Stages Rally

Chicago, Sept. 25—Opening today 3/8 cents down, Chicago wheat sagged further and then rallied. Corn started 1/8 off and later held near to the initial figures, with September at a new low for the season.

Port of Boston News

By JAMES J. DELANEY

Average time from Calcutta to Boston for the last six months by the Brocklebank steamer freighters has been 3[illegible] days, it was announced today. This is four days less than that of any of the other four lines on the same run.

The company has 10 steamers in the service between the eastern port and this port, making 20 arrivals and 20 sailings here annually.

The line calls at Calcutta, Colombo, Port Sudan, Suez, Port Said and Oran. Each steamer carries a cargo worth more than $1,000,[illegible]

Farrell, Gary Overruled by Steel Board

Daily Pay Last Year Twice 1914 Rate; Gifford a Steel Director

By B. C. Forbes

New York, Sept. 25. The United States Steel Corp. directors have a habit of overruling the corporation executives on the question of reducing wages.

B. C. Forbes

James A. Farrell, president of the corporation, had all along proclaimed opposition to any wage reductions. Publication of his attitude later became very distasteful to others influentially identified with the Steel Trust. The incident hasn't served to strengthen President Farrell's place in the set-up of the organization. Rather it has brought Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the powerful finance committee, to the fore. It was he, not President Farrell, who presided over the giving out of the reduction news.

Judge Gary, mighty though he was in indicating the policies of the corporation, once was similarly overruled.

Just as on this latest occasion the writer at that time learned in advance that Steel wages would be reduced. Judge Gary was furious when this column revealed what was coming. He denied vehemently that there would be any change whatever in the Steel Corporation's wage rates.

On a Monday morning the New York World carried a front page "authoritative" statement that Steel wages were to be maintained, the newspaper's authority being none other than Judge Gary. Next day the finance committee met, overruled Judge Gary, [illegible] summoned financial reporters, and publicly announced a wage cut.

It should be said, in fairness to the Steel Trust directors, that (so far as I know) they have always supported recommended wage advances, and there were lots of them during Judge Gary's regime.

The average pay of Steel Corporation employes, including salaries and wages but excluding general administration and the selling force, was $[illegible] per day last year, contrasted with $2.88 per day in 1914. At the height of the post-war boom the average daily pay reached $6.[illegible] in 1920. The average fell to $[illegible] in the following year and to $[illegible] in 1922.

It will thus be seen that Steel pay last year was slightly more than twice what it was in the pre-war year, 1914.

This year's showing unquestionably will be distinctly poorer because salaries were reduced from 10 to 15 per cent on Aug. 15; wages are to be cut 10 per cent Oct. 1, and business has been running for some time at less than one-third capacity.

• • •

It will interest you to know the calibre of the men composing the Steel Corporation's directorate at this time: J. P. Morgan, chairman of the board; James A. Farrell, T. W. Lamont, George F. Baker, William J. Filbert, comptroller; Percival Roberts, Jr., Samuel Mather, Thomas Morrison, Eugene J. Buffington, Nathan L. Miller, Myron C. Taylor, Junius S. Morgan, Jr., Walter S. Gifford and D. F. Houston.

You will thus see that, one way or another, these gentlemen exercise a very far-flung influence upon American finance, industry, transportation.

Several newspapers have made the mistake of referring to the United States Steel Corporation as the largest corporation in America. It isn't. Much the largest corporation in the whole world is the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, with which is interwoven the Bell System. It has more than twice the assets of the Steel Corporation, namely $5,000,19[illegible],801, compared with the Steel Corporation's $2,394,544,611, both totals being for the end of last year.

Curiously enough, the president of the world's largest enterprise, Walter S. Gifford, was not so long ago elected a member of the Steel Corporation's inner circle, the finance committee. The late George F. Baker, whose voice carried great weight in Steel Corporation concerns, was among the first to recognize young Gifford's extraordinary talents. It was Mr. Baker who not only annexed him to his own First National Bank board, but endorsed him for the Steel Corporation directorate.

Although many corporations are cutting wages, I doubt whether Gifford's American Telephone will figure in the list at this time. He is commander-in-chief of no fewer than 375,000 employes.

• • •

After its breathless race upward, not unnaturally, Wall St. showed moderate fatigue yesterday.

BOND MARKET MANAGES TO KEEP GAINS

By FRANK H. MELOON

The stock market marched up the hill, and then marched down again, recalling the old nursery rhyme about the famous king, but the bond market has managed to keep some of its gains after setting records during the first part of the week. A good bond market is regarded by most Wall and State st. observers as necessary to a sustained rise in stocks. Wednesday's gain of 1.29 points for bonds was the largest ever recorded by the Dow-Jones averages in a single session.

• • •

"Yes, I agree with that," retorted the old bear, "but from what level?"

That seems to be the insistent question regarding both stocks and bonds. From what level will they rise? Plenty of money is on the sidelines for buying when a definite upward trend is established.

National Assn. of Cotton Manufacturers, which has its headquarters in the Boston Chamber of Commerce Bldg. will hold its annual meeting Oct. 7 and 8 in Providence, near the birthplace of the modern textile industry. The business outlook, merchandising, distribution and taxation will be the principal topics for discussion.

Russell T. Fisher

• • •

New officers will be elected and reports of Treasurer Frederick Flather, Jr., Secretary Russell T. Fisher and of committees will be read at the opening business session Oct. 7 in the Rhode Island Country Club. The influence of the changing customer demands on mills and distributors will be discussed by Ray Kramer, fashion authority, at the Oct. 8 meeting in the Providence Biltmore Hotel. At this meeting Alexander Storck, one of the leading dress manufacturers of the country, will speak of the advantages of a closer understanding between the cutting trade and the mills.

• • •

"The Business Outlook" will be the subject of an address Thursday afternoon by Elliot S. Boardman of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston. Massachusetts Commissioner of Taxes Henry F. Long, another speaker of the day, will discuss taxation.

• • •

U. S. Department of Agriculture experts forecasting [illegible] cotton crop by some new method placed it far above private estimates using the old method. The Federal estimate sent the price of cotton tumbling when it was issued several weeks ago. Now despite the present alleged big crop the census bureau reports show but 2,091,513 bales ginned to Sept. 16 as against 3,736,120 on the same date last year.

• • •

Is the "larger" crop mythical? Defense of the high Federal figures is evidently being prepared in advance, with the Washington announcement that the 1931 crop may be reduced through failure of planters to pick poor, late cotton and the possibility that much cotton may not be ginned. Another says the low price of cotton may be a factor in curtailment of harvesting. Logically one might reason that, if the market-smashing Federal crop report had not been issued, the price would have been higher and the harvesting greater.

Dividends

• • •

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Dividend news of the past 24 hours has been of unusual interest. Anaconda did the expected in suspending payments. Liquid Carbonic cut its rate to 50 cents quarterly from 75 cents previously. New York Air Brake omitted its dividend as did General Realty & Utility. Lackawanna halved its payment.

Against this, Johns-Manville officials stated the $3 common dividend will be maintained this year. Pierce Arrow preferred dividend will also be maintained according to an executive.

Bond Prices More Significant

More significance will be attached to the fluctuations in bonds from now on than at any time in the past. Institutional selling of these securities had been in progress for some time, because holders were disturbed by lower earnings. This was true particularly of the rail bonds which have suffered sharp reactions at times because of steady pressure which represented actual liquidation. Several of the leading professionals will base stock market operations on the action of bonds so that further weakness in these issues might delay participation on the long side of stocks by interests who have been credited frequently in the past with directing upward movements.

Pool Liquid"tion In Woolworth

The selling which came into Woolworth recently when other leading stocks were displaying a better tone represented liquidation by a pool which had been operating for higher prices some weeks ago according to views of students who had been watching the source of the supply. Naturally, the lower prices uncovered stop orders and brought about public selling as well. Scale support, such as held the stock heretofore when selling was encountered, has been absent and the offering had more effect because of the [illegible] demand.

That Canadian Pacific Dividend

[illegible] uncertainty exists in Canada regarding the continuation of the present $1.25 a share annual dividend rate on Canadian Pacific. [illegible] pointed out that for the past [illegible] months or more earnings of the Canadian railroads, and especially Canadian Pacific, in which interest is the greatest, have been declining [illegible]. The Government authorities are said to have been considering some relief but what action can be taken to place the railroads of the Dominion on a sound and profitable basis has been a big problem. Some of the selling which has been responsible for the recent low prices of Canadian Pacific in this market has been attributed to liquidation of long position by Canadian holders.

Good Buying in Hudson & Manhattan

Comparatively good buying has been coming into Hudson & Manhattan from prominent interests who are confident on the outlook for the company over the long period. It is maintained that earnings have been satisfactory, particularly in view of the business depression, which has caused some reduction in the use of the company's service. Those who have been picking up the stock quietly the past 10 days have been pointing to the good yield obtainable at the current level.

Domestic Affairs Swaying Sentiment

Traders who refuse to let themselves be carried away by the enthusiasm of the recovery since the first of the week looked uopn the market set-back as a perfectly normal development. Severity of the decline no doubt demonstrated the extremely vulnerable position of many issues due to the immense volume of covering during the two-day Stock Exchange ban on short selling.

Bear Ranks Are Greatly Reduced

It is only logical to assume in the light of subsequent events that the reduction in the bear account this week was far greater than had been generally supposed. Possibility was weighed also that with the removal of foreign threats, temporarily, at least, and with natural trading restored here, the Street was again turning to consideration of fundamentals in domestic business and corporate affairs. Apparently the market's late rebound failed to allay fears over possible further discouraging dividend news. At any rate, revived rumors concerning the outcome of this or that directors meeting bore witness to this.

Atchison Earning $10 Dividend Rate

Atchison lost almost half its recovery from the extreme low point of the year in the reaction. All things considered, the present price of the stock still takes into account a likely revision in the dividend. Some forecasts suggest a reduction to a $7 basis, disregarding estimates that current earnings are running close to the $10 annual requirement.

Financial Position Viewed As Strong

In quarters close to the management the financial position of the road is regarded as sufficiently strong to permit another payment on the present basis, but directors are expected to finally determine the question. Atchison's liquid investments and net current assets are understood to be worth around $30 a share at present market prices.

Kresge Holding At "Pegged" Price

Unique market for Kresge common is arousing considerable curiosity. The stock has remained stationary at 26¼ during all the market excitement this week. There have been reports to the effect that a dominant executive in the company is supporting the issue at that figure. Insofar as the affairs of the company are concerned, late sales reports disclose a relatively small decline from a year ago. August business was down 3.8 per cent and eight months dollar volume dropped only 1 per cent compared with the 1930 figures for both periods. The company's inventory position is said to be such that rising commodity prices could easily result in a substantial mark up of its one-price items.

Electric Output of Associ"ted Gas Up

Another business barometer acts promisingly. Electric output of Associated Gas & Electric System in week ended September 19 totaled 68,114,150 k. w. h., an increase of 7.7 per cent over the like 1930 week. Excluding sales to other utilities output was 8-10ths of 1 per cent higher. Sales of gas for the week totaled 310,538,500 cubic feet, a decrease of 6.[illegible] per cent from a year ago.

United Air Traffic Increases Sharply

Revenue passengers carried by United Air Lines on its trans-continental, middle west, inter-mountain and western lines during the [illegible] mately thirty-three per cent more than during [illegible] slightly exceeded those of July, a record month, P. G. Johnson, president of United Air Lines, announced yesterday. United's operating subsidiaries are National, Boeing and Pacific Air Transport and Varney Air Lines.

Loadings of Penn R. R. Are Larger

From January 1 to September 19 loadings were 4,401,528 cars as against 5,400,714 in the same period last year.

CURB MARKET HAS NEW WAVE OF BUYING

New York, Sept. 25—The curb market executed another of its swift-turnabouts this morning, with initial reactionary tendencies quickly replaced by a buying movement which carried a long list of important stocks to price levels moderately above previous closings.

The utility group was first to reflect the changes in the speculative pulse. Electric Bond and Share rallied from a low of 20[illegible] to 21⅛ for a net gain of 1⅛ point. American Light and Traction swung up from a low of 24⅛ to 26 for a net advance of a point. American Gas and Electric rallied from 40⅛ to 44 for a net gain of 3 points, and gains averaging a point were also chalked up by Electric Power and Light warrants, and Brazil Traction.

Cities Service tended to lag. Specialties were generally irregular with a four-point upturn in Aluminum to 98, offset by a new decline of 6 points in Singer Manufacturing to 154, and losses averaging 2 points in Glen Alden Coal and Parker Rustproof.

Oil were irregularly lower, with moderate losses in Gulf and Humble offsetting a gain of about a point in Standard of Indiana.

FOOD INDEX OF WEEK LOWER

Bradstreet's Weekly Food Index has turned lower after a month of steady advance. The index is now only slightly higher than the low point reached this summer.

The index number for this week is $2.15. This represents a decline of 1.8 per cent from the previous week but is four-tenths of 1 per cent higher than a month ago when prices were at their lowest level. As compared with a year ago the decrease is 20.6 per cent.

Weekly price changes in Bradstreet's list of 87 selected commodities shows that only [illegible] were higher than the preceding week, 21 were lower and 58 remained unchanged. In the previous week there were 22 advances, 17 declines and 48 unchanged.

Consolidated Gas Sales Set Record

New York, Sept. 25 (AP)—The Consolidated Gas Co. established a new high record for monthly sale of automatic gas refrigerators in August when it sold 6151 against 5918 in July, the previous record month.

Rubber Turns Weak

New York, Sept. 25. Rubber futures today turned weak. September 4.40, December 4.30, new contracts September 4.60, December 4.60, March 4.65.

SPECTATOR

Says:

With speculative enthusiasm for the rise almost completely abated by the aggressive selling tactics of professionals, the market outlook for the near term is strictly beclouded.

Averages Lower

While secondary selling was logically looked for in view of the spectacular rally immediately preceding, this reaction should normally have been checked above the previous day's lows. Instead it not only caused the retracement of the extensive gains chalked up on Wednesday, but carried the market averages to new low ground for the bear movement.

The one ray of hope lies in the action of rails. They alone of all groups making up the accepted market averages are above their former bottoms for the year. Ability of the carriers to hold above these resistance points should normally point the way for the trend of the list in general.

Utilities

The deflation in the utility group has been so drastic amounting to approximately 1[illegible] points in the Standard Statistics averages in the past month [illegible] a number of high-grade [illegible] are selling close to [illegible] times earnings ratio.

As an illustration, American Power & Light, which reported net per common share of $[illegible] for the 12 months period ended June [illegible] is quoted at approximately [illegible] times these earnings in the open market. American Water Works [illegible] Columbia Gas & Electric with net of $[illegible] at [illegible] times; Commonwealth & Southern with net of [illegible] cents at 11 times; Consolidated Gas of New York with net of $5.08 at 1[illegible] times; North American with net of $3.5[illegible] at [illegible] times and Standard Gas with net of $5.15 at eight times.

PRICES BACK AND FILL IN WALL ST.

New York, Sept. 25—Many early losses were cancelled in Wall Street trading today as the session progressed. U. S. Steel and American Can opening up over a point, gave cheer to the constructive forces by their action, and rises rapidly began to spread over the list.

The strong support accorded U. S. Seel held declines after its initial appearance on the tape to small fractions.

RECOVERIES ARE MADE.

Woolworth more than regained in the first half-hour hte loss of 8½ poins recorded at the opening. At the same time Eastman Kodak erased its loss of 2¼ points and showed a small gain.

American Can sbcurried up more than 2 points on brisk bidding, while Western Union was sent up over 3 points.

Support for pivotal issues as quickly reversed yesterday's downward trend as did yesterday's decline turned right about the hectic rise of the previous session. Trading slackened on the rise.

How much of the buying was short covering was not clear, but brokers said it was logical to suppose bears would hasten to take profits after yesterday's severe tumble.

SETBACK MYSTIFIES

Wall Street was still left rather mystified by yesterday's drastic reaction, but the tendency was to regard the dumping of $100,000,000 of bankers' acceptances in this market, largely by foreign banks, as unsettling at a time when the stock market's technical position had been weakened.

Sterling broke sharply this morning, being nominally quoted as low as $3.40 to $3.45, but quotations rose to $3.60 to $3.65. The foreign exchange market was very erratic.

Both brokers and bankers applauded the action of the American Legion convention in voting down the bonus proposal, and said that it should have a distinctly helpful influence on the security markets particularly bonds. It is widely felt in Wall Street that sustained strength in the bond market must precede general recovery.

DAME ATTACKS BEAR ACTION

New York, Sept. 25—President Frank L. Dame of North American Co., referring to renewed circulation of rumors regarding a change in the dividend policy of the company, said:

"These rumors, which were entirely without foundation, were circulated for the sole purpose of depressing the market price of the stock, coincident with the removal of the Stock Exchange ban on short selling.

"No change in the dividend is in contemplation and the record of the company over the past eight years, during which dividends have been paid in stock at the rate now in force, clearly demonstrates the wisdom of the practice and the justification for its continuance."

6173 Locomotives Require Repairs

Class I railroads of this country on Sept. 1, had 6173 locomotives in need of classified repairs or 11.4 per cent of the number on line, according to reports just filed by the carriers with the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association.

This was an increase of 831 locomotives above the number in need of such repairs on Aug. 15, at which time three were 6090 or 11.2 per cent.

Pierce-Arrow Corp. Dividend Discussed

With net profits for the first half of this year totaling $421,712, about covering the full dividend requirements of Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Co., the dividends on the preferred stock are expected to be maintained, according to A. R. Erskine, chairman of Studebaker Corp. He asserted, too, that four quarter results are expected to be better than the third quarter.

Me. Central Gives Report for August

For eight months ended August 31, surplus after charges was $51,324, comparing with a surplus after charges of $736,233 for the corresponding period of last year.

ADVICE TO INVESTORS IS FREE

Before you buy or sell stocks or bonds, you ought to secure unbiased expert advice. Send your investment inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Sq., Boston. All replies are made by mail direct.

NOT INVESTMENT

L. S., Brookline—Please give information on Phillips Petroleum. Do you consider the stock a good purchase?

Ans.—Phillips Petroleum is a speculation. Quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share, due April 2, was omitted. Dividends in varying amounts, with extras, were paid from 1921. From January, 1930, the rate had been $2 a share. Earnings for year ended December 21, 1930, amounted to 93 cents a share, against $5.10 in 1929. June 30 operations brought a deficit of $2,674,153, or 62 cents a share.

BOUGHT HIGHER

G. D., Natick—What is your opinion of Colorado Fuel & Iron? I have 25 shares at 72.

Ans.—It would be useless for us to attempt to guess future prices for Colorado Fuel & Iron, or any stock. Though the company is a leading steel manufacturer in the district west of the Mississippi River, the common stock is a speculation. Dividend record is decidedly irregular. Quarterly payment expected in May was omitted. Net income in 1930 amounted to 41 cents a share, contrasted with $6.43 in 1929. Operations for six months ended June 30 brought a net loss of $636,276, against profit of $1,619,053, or $4.52 a share in similar period of 1930.

STOCK DIVIDEND

B. J., Arlington—I have a small profit on North American common. Shall I switch to something else?

Ans.—We could not advise on taking profits. North American controls one of the leading groups of electric power utilities under single ownership. Regular cash dividends are paid on the preferred stock, but dividends on the common are paid at annual rate of 10 per cent in common stock. This method has been followed from last quarter of 1923. Net income for 12 months ended June 30, 1931, amounted to $3.89 a share, against $5.06 for the previous 12 months. The stock is a speculation.

FOR REGULAR INCOME

I. M., Brookline—I am a middle-aged working man, with close to $9000 in savings banks. Please suggest a list of good stocks or bonds that will bring a regular income.

Ans.—Here is a plan that will not use all your cash: $2000 each Prudential Company 5½s and Lawyers Title & Guaranty 5s; ten shares each American Sugar Refining preferred, Public Service of New Jersey 5 per cent preferred and 15 Standard Gas & Electric $4 preferred. The total cost is approximately $7000 and the combined annual income is $410. The bonds are guaranteed as to principal and interest. Earnings for the stocks cover dividends comfortably.

Abandonment of the Gold Standard Is Explained

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.

New York, Sept. 25—Great Britain's abandonment of the gold standard at least temporarily is redistributing wealth, income, and economic power in that country.

The latest British maneuver has the effect of lightening the burden of all debtors owing obligations in sterling. This includes Australia, Argentina, Brazil, Germany and others.

By the same token it penalizes creditors, including recipients of life insurance proceeds, annuities, and rents. The creditor classes had been benefiting at the expense of the rest of the community from the sharp decline of commodity prices of the last two years, which increased the purchasing power, or real value, of money payments.

• • •

Incidentally, by a single stroke, the new British monetary policy automatically again reduces the real value of the onerous dole to the unemployed.

Moreover, it cuts down real wages, and other items in the cost of production of British industry, whose capacity to carry on the export trade had been menaced by relatively high costs.

The new policy, born of necessity, constitutes a reversal of the deflationary program which since 1925 has weighted down British industry and diminished its relative place in the sun.

The new policy, which was forced by a desire to stop a run by foreign short term creditors, is a counter-deflationary move.

• • •

By suspending the gold standard, Great Britain, in the mirst of stress and strain, creates for itself a closed monetary system, which becomes far more amenable to domestic control than the gold standard, which is subject to international influences.

• • •

The departure from the gold standard incidentally relieves Great Britain—temporarily at least—from potential financial domination by the countries which are in control of the world's supply of monetary gold, namely, the United States and France.

It retraces the step taken in 1925 toward the re-establishment of the old order in finance.

Though it temporarily removes England from the possibility of financial dictation by foreign countries, it also means that London abdicates its traditional role as the world financial center. Financial primacy has definitely passed to New York, whose banks in time will doubtless build up a profitable trade in collecting commissions for financing exports as London has done for generations.

Paris becomes the secondary financial center, a place of vastly more importance for the present in international finance than London. Apart from meeting the emergency of stopping foreign withdrawals of short term funds, which was menacing the gold holdings of the Bank of England, the new policy, in its larger objectives, doubtless reflects a desire to check the depression through raising prices and to heighten Britain's export position by relatively reducing costs of production.

Hatter has Profit for Every Month

New York, Sept. 25—President A. C. Lehman states that the Blaw-Knox Co. has earned a profit every month of 1931 to date and believes it will be able to earn $1 a share this year. Earnings for the first half-year were about 60 cents a share. Company is in a strong position, with current assets on Aug. 31 of $6,500,000, of which $500,000 was in cash or its equivalent.

Utility Holders in Half Year Increase

Salina, Kans., Sept. 25—A consistent increase in the number of stockholders of Western Power, Light & Telephone Co. was shown during the first half of 1931, it was announced today. In this six months' period the number of Class "A" stockholders gained 16 per cent while there was an 18 per cent jump in the holders of $7 preferred stock.

More and more, legal authorities are becoming convinced that jury decisions are too often at odds with the evidence presented.

* * *

Maybe we ought to do away with the jury system. Give the decision to the attorney who registers the highest blood-pressure.

Little Willie, without a quiver,
Shoved his father into the river.
"Willie, Pa can't swim a stroke."

Adam Scofflaw's Djournal

Whilst I am by nature an modest man, not given to ostentation, charlatanism, quackery, boasting or shallow profundity and would not 'gage in jack-a-dandy buoyancy or harm a flea, I do confess that my new hat band, with the wordes "Out for a Good Time" printed thereon hath afforded me great pleasure of late, and I have made many new friends whilst riding to the printery atop the bus, for which Heaven be praised!

GOOFY PUZZLE No. 345872

Yet here I am in all my glory
Of raiment, bought on time extension
(It's too embarrassing to mention)
Except this fact—There was nuthin' down.
Now who'll be embarrassed when I leave town?
—Betty Fisher.

Q. and A. Department

Dear Sympathetic Aunt Bella:

My old man is a prominent gun man and has been missing for a week. I'm afraid he's been bumped off. —ANXIOUS.

—Aunt (Chuckles) Bella.

PLEURISY

Mrs. M. S. Colbath, West Enfield, Maine, says:—"I do not wish to see the doctor today. I am well. I brought the doctor a patient that I hope he will be as successful with as he was with me. When I came to Dr. Walsh for treatment in April, 1929, I suffered with severe pains in my chest, I was anaemic, had lost weight and felt all run down in health. My reason for going to Dr. Walsh with my trouble was because I had read of his success in the treatment of others who suffered as I did. I make this statement so that others who suffer as I did may profit by my experience and get well through the skillful treatment of Dr. Walsh."

(Signed) Mrs. M. S. Colbath.

In the beginning, God created the heaven and the earth. And the earth was without form and void: and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters Genesis, 1, 1-2.

Our 25,000 Illiterates

And 1000 Teachers Idle

Within Metropolitan Boston, famed for its culture, there are more than 25,000 illiterate men, women and children.

In the State as a whole there are 125,000 persons more than ten years of age unable to read or write.

Put them to work. They have a fertile field among our illiterate residents.

Good government, sound business, ingenious labor—all of them rest on the foundation of fundamental education.

Patriotism—that is, real love of country—rests on the knowledge of a country's language and the consequent ability of the people to familiarize themselves with the country's history and traditions.

It is a sounder investment to educate these people than to allow them to brood over their misfortunes in times like these and to become active, destructive enemies of society.

Council Problems

City's Progress Demands Good Men

Here, at least, where we have the oldest civil government in the country, the interest in public service does not lag.

Boston has made extraordinary progress, much more than we appreciate from casual observation.

The port of Boston, which languished for years, has steadily increased in business, not by leaps and bounds, it is true, but with that steadiness which makes for certainty.

Economic observers tell us that we are in better, firmer condition than any other section of the country.

With all those conditions of progress and of prospective improvement, the people of Boston should be careful not to fill their City Council with braying asses or intellectual misfits, who can make the city a laughing stock and impede its advancement.

There will be plenty of oratory between today and November 3, election day. Ample time to single out the doers from the talkers.

League Court "Logic"

Ordinary prudence teaches mankind to avoid that which is bad. On this thesis, America belongs outside of the League Court. The strange logic of our American internationalists argues otherwise.

For example, there is the Chicago Journal of Commerce, a pro-League publication. Discussing the League Court's one important decision — in the Austro-German customs union case — the Journal of Commerce finds the decision "indefensibly bad," yet insists that America should risk the manifest dangers of League Court membership. The editorial in question says:

> "The chief victim of the World Court's decision in the Austro-German customs union case is the World Court. The World Court ought to exist, and the United States ought to adhere to it, in spite of its political coloring; even in spite of its bad decision in the customs union case. BUT THE BADNESS OF THE DECISION CAN HARDLY BE DENIED.
> "Eight of the fifteen judges decide that an Austro-German agreement for mutual leveling of tariff barriers would violate Austria's promise in 1922 not to compromise her freedom. The same reason would suffice for preventing Austria from entering any international agreement whatever. Seven members of this majority also declare that the customs union agreement violates the provision in the Austrian peace treaty that Austria's independence shall be maintained.
>
> "It is a BAD, INDEFENSIBLE decision. It does not immediately hurt Austria and Germany, for their financial necessities had already forced them to mollify France by renouncing the agreement. The victim of the decision is the World Court itself. THE DECISION IS POLITICAL; THE JUDGES VOTED WITH THEIR COUNTRIES, NOT ACCORDING TO THEIR INDIVIDUAL RIGHTS."

Port Grows Fast

We now have forty-four steamship lines affording ocean freight service to some 140 foreign ports.

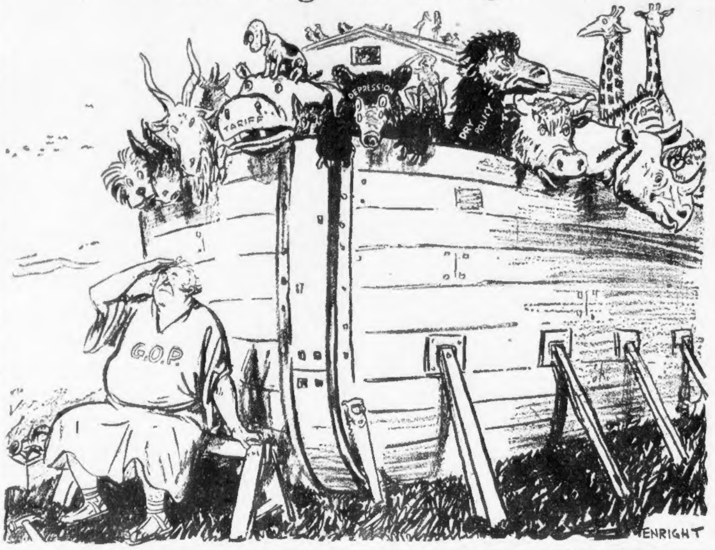
There are sixteen steamship lines in the coastwise trade, with direct sailings to thirty-eight American ports; also a half-dozen air transport lines furnishing direct service to the great cities of America and Canada.

When we recall our idle port of only ten years ago, we must be impressed by the extraordinary progress.

But we have far to go. Because of its ideal location, splendid harbor and the wealth of New England plus its maritime history and traditions, we can become the greatest port in America.

Let's make that our purpose. Keep the port always in mind. And pull together for it.

Awaiting the Deluge!



Evidently the Grand Old Party expects a STORM. And if the political weather prophets are right, there will BE a storm—when the next national election day comes around.

But will the G. O. P. Ark SURVIVE, with its strange assortment of legislative animals?

Or will the queer-looking boat be SUBMERGED in a sea of ballots?

Listen, World!

Something Is Wrong

THE MAN CAME out of the shadow of the building, just as I was getting into my car.

Elsie Robinson

He was a tall, thin man, about sixty years of age . . . so thin, so drained of fire and purpose that it was as though an edge of the shadow detached itself and drifted toward me. Only his eyes seemed alive and they were not alive with any hope or happiness. They smoldered dully, like a fire almost gone. Everything else was finished in him, except that dull shame and resentment at the fact that he, a man, must beg of a woman.

"I wouldn't ask it, if I thought I could stand it for another night," he whispered, his face half turned away. "But I've slept out in alleys three nights now and I don't believe I can stand another—with this cold. If maybe you could let me have the price of a bed—"

He looked at me. I looked at him. Something that had been between us went down. He saw I knew. I'd felt like that too. Known alleys . . . and cold nights — Something between us went down. He needn't turn his head away—He could look at me straight. Talk to me straight. We both knew.

"There's something wrong!" he cried sharply—so sharply it was like a gun going off in that quiet, rich street. "It isn't my fault I'm like this. Do you think I want to ask anyone for money? Why should I have to ask if I'm willing to work? There's something wrong—"

* * *

There's something wrong. Remember those words. Many a hand will reach to you, out of the shadow, this winter. At first you'll be touched. Then, maybe, you'll grow tired or disgusted and say—

"I bet most of them are just loafers who wouldn't work even if you gave them a job.

"Why didn't they save when they had a chance? A man who can't save enough to live comfortably by the time he's sixty, can't be worth much. He doesn't deserve help.

"It just encourages loafing to give people like that money."

Perhaps you'll say that as you see them reaching out of the shadow, lining up in the bread lines, by the scores, by the hundreds, by the thousands—all those seven million unemployed. If so—DON'T! Don't say that. Take it from me, you're wrong.

Whatever made me, put a knack of words in my brain and a wallop of energy in my blood. That's how I beat the game. I couldn't possibly have beaten it if I had been made as most of them are—tired and dull and discouraged from the day I was born.

FOR IT'S A CRUEL GAME.

You and I are profiting by it—

WE'RE PROFITING BECAUSE WE HAVE THE MAKINGS—

BECAUSE WE'VE HAD THE BREAKS—

It's a game for the strong and the smart.

BUT IT'S HELL ON THE WEAK AND THE DULL—

Don't forget it.

There IS something wrong—

You and I can't change it. But we can do this. We can admit there's something wrong. We can admit our responsibility for that wrong . . . AND NOT TRY TO HANG ALL THE BLAME ON THE POOR DEVIL WITH THE OUTSTRETCHED HAND.

New York Day by Day

Thoughts While Strolling

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—Thoughts while strolling: Chevalier's flop on the radio did not hurt his movie popularity. He packs them in. Tough going for light ladies these days. Madge Evans is my newest cinema love. They say Anna May Wong has been in every country save China.

Donald Brian, a St. John's Newfoundland, boy, who made good in the city. There's a soft job — clerking in a Lexington ave. yacht store. Rumored Babe Ruth has been at several Park ave. teas lately. Those buck-toothed boys with conversation limited to "Rawther" and "Quite."

The snootiness that "Band Wagon" appeals only to the intelligentsia is a current pain in the neck. It's mostly burlesque. Nor can I run a temperature over the Astaires. I've seen cleverer teams at the Palace. Business at the Flea Circus holds up.

Every time I pass one of those Vanderbilt mansions, I think of the first Cornelius in patched breeches collecting two-bit fares on his New York to New Brunswick ferryboat. Wonder if they've started burning dry leaves in gutter bonfires out yonder? Jerry Dahl.

Boom days must be on the way. An avenue jeweler displays pencils with gold knobs for dial phoning and a vest pocket dice cup with silver dice. The only professional sportsman with a screen appeal to me is Bobby Jones. Earl Carroll's white haired theatrical angel—W. R. Edrington of Ft. Worth.

Whitewash always makes me think of the poorhouse back home. And daisies of an old abandoned railroad siding near the town depot. That's where I first watched them grow. Vernon Castle had the first police dog I ever saw. And Irene the first griffon.

A woman with a peg leg. Jack Howard looks like one of the dancing Slate brothers. Funny how a person's happiness is frequently annoying to other people. Ever notice? Herb Roth's athletic shoulders. Almost cold enough for an open fire and an evening with Dickens!

When Irvin Cobb was in San Francisco 15 years ago a young writer, now well known, approached him about storming the metropolitan gates. "What," he inquired, "do you think the attitude of eastern magazine editors would be toward a western writer?" Cobb reflected a moment and finally drawled: "I cannot tell precisely but it's apt to be calm."

"Speaking," postcards R. J. H., "of boys who keep their promises, do you recall that in his 1929 campaign Jimmy Walker yodeled from the house-tops: 'I am the candidate of Tammany Hall and if elected I will be a Tammany Hall mayor.'"

My spies in Paris report that Gabrielle Chanel sums up her experiences in Hollywood with one of those enigmatic Gallic shrugs. The couturier was brought to the coast with a wild beating of tom-toms. Just what she was supposed to do was not exactly plain — something to do with putting chic into the cinema. She was a favorite, however, at many Hollywood parties where she expressed the hoydenish spirit that gave her the name of "Coco" in Paris.

Just Folks

Teaching Sportsmanship

Would there were a way to teach
Courage to the growing boy.
All so pitiful seems speech
In his hour of shattered joy
When his cherished hope seems gone;
Vain it is to whisper low:
"Come, be brave and carry on,
Soon the pain of this will go."

Musing thus I fancied then
Something in my study stirred
And a voice said: "Why must men
Lean upon the spoken word?
Courage isn't taught by speech
Or by books upon a shelf,
If it's bravery you'd teach
Let him find it in yourself.

"Oft you whimper and complain,
Oft you let your temper fly.
He has heard you fret in pain.
Often when he's near you sigh.
Disappointment droops your lip;
Better courage you must show
If you'd teach him sportsmanship.

"Let him see you play the man,
Let him see you stand to care;
That's more apt to teach him than
All your phrases, fine and fair,
Set him an example here
Of the manly thing to do,
And in times of stress and fear
He'll be just as brave as you."

Presidential Self-Nomination

By BAINBRIDGE COLBY

A DISTINGUISHED EX-PRESIDENT—once upon a time—is said to have been urged by his friends to seek again the nomination for the presidency.

He turned, however, from their persuasions, remarking that the incumbent, a member of his party, and an active candidate for re-nomination, could get the nomination if it were worth anything, and if it were not, no one else wanted it.

BAINBRIDGE COLBY

In homely terms, this incident describes a grave departure from the intention of the Constitution, whose makers could never have foreseen such a situation as has come about today.

It could never have been the purpose of the founders of our government that THE ELECTIVE PRINCIPLE, which they regarded as THE GREAT CONSTITUTIONAL REMEDY, should be smothered by the enormous patronage of the general government; and that the power of a President to accomplish his renomination should be deemed irresistible, and therefore conceded.

* * *

In the earlier years of our history, it excited general alarm when officials of the federal government began to take an active part in promoting the election of a President, and that the latter himself should mingle in such activities, was particularly abhorrent.

> "Electioneering for the presidency has spread its contagion to the President himself," said John Quincy Adams in his memoirs, as if the mere statement of the fact carried rebuke; and he adds "The prime leaders of the parties, instead of attending to the duties of their offices, now rave, recite and madden round the land."

We have drifted far from this austere view that the impetus for the renomination of a President should spring from the unprompted and uncoerced impulses of his fellow citizens, satisfied with his record and desiring his continuance in office.

* * *

The present postmaster-general in a recent speech before a convention of the National Association of Postmasters attempted to stimulate their activity in behalf of Mr. Hoover's renomination in words that must make every thoughtful American bow his head in mortification.

> "The indisputable fact," says the postmaster-general, "is that the laws of our land place no restrictions whatever upon presidential officers, a term which includes postmasters of the first, second and third classes. The statutes which forbid political activity on the part of governmental employes are limited to members of the classified Civil Service. They have no relation whatever to executive officials who are appointed by the President."

The postmaster-general, it would seem, needs to be reminded that there are some aspects of public conduct besides the purely legal. He is defending a practice which the late Carl Schurz, of immortal memory in connection with Civil Service reform, described as

* * *

In the light of such practices, it is small wonder that a President is assured of renomination. The fact that his record may have been a general disappointment; that his candidacy a second time may spell defeat for his party, and that there are other men in his party who would make a stronger and possibly a successful appeal to the country, where he makes none, have no bearing apparently upon the question of his renomination.

Apparently A NATIONAL PARTY IS GAGGED BY SOME PRINCIPLE OF POLITICAL ESTOPPEL from weighing the record or from even approaching the question as to who could best carry forward the party's principles and insure its continuance in power.

Once a President, always a President, at least to the expiration of a second term, seems to have become a principle of party practice with almost the force of a constitutional provision.

This is very lamentable. It deprives the people of the unfettered and patriotic service of a great national party, which, having placed a man in the presidency, seems to be powerless to replace him in the interests either of the country at large or of the party. The latter's function seems reduced to a mere ratification of the incumbent's wish to succeed himself.

* * *

Of course, there have been instances in our history where a President has succeeded himself because, in the judgment of his countrymen, he has earned the honor, and it is in keeping with their wishes. Such is the case where a President, after four years of illustrious service, is renominated by acclamation in his party convention.

A very different situation is presented where, by timely foresight, the veiled menace of presidential displeasure and the shrewd dispensation of promises or places, delegates are gathered up and pledged to the incumbent's renomination months or even years in advance of the assembling of the nominating convention.

Already the leaders of the Republican Party are being quoted in terms of resignation, as it were, to an inescapable fate. The renomination of the President is viewed as something to be accepted with stoicism. Even now some are looking forward to 1936 as if only then would the party be emancipated from this iron commitment and recover its power of action.

What Do You Know?
